DUCE ACCEPTS NAZI WAR PACT

GRIM CONGRESS HOLDS FORT TO FOIL ROOSEVELT

Distrustful of His Foreign Policy.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—Lines were tightening today in one of the most extraordinary and spectacular struggles in our history between the executive and congress.

If President Roosevelt has his way, congress will complete national defense legislation, repeal or modify materially the neutrality act and go home. That would mean indefinite postponement of attempts to revise the labor relations act and other New Deal legislation, including punitive taxes on business enterprise.

Moreover, with congress out of the way Mr. Roosevelt would be able to conduct our foreign relations without interference from the legislative branch, particularly without daily criticism on the floor of congress of his foreign policy as one likely to involve us in another European war.

Revolt Against Program.

Congress, however, is in revolt against this program of the President's. It is manifesting a disposition to stay on the job all summer and as much longer as necessary to keep the country from being drawn into war. That the national legislature is shot through with distrust of the President's foreign policy was demonstrated by the debate on the resolution offered by Senator John H. Bankhead [D., Ala.] to adjourn congress by June 15.

Whether this move was or was not inspired by the administration it was significant that not a single New Dealer came to Senator Bankhead's support, while Democrats as well as Republicans were contending that congress must stay in session because congress alone can be relied upon to keep the country out of war. The implication was that Mr. Roosevelt could not be trusted in the absence of congress to keep the country out of war.

View Policy with Distrust.

This distrust of the Roosevelt foreign policy has been fanned by the President's frequent utterances in favor of the United States joining European powers in quarantining aggressors and by his recent adoption of the view that the United States cannot avoid becoming involved eventually in a European war.

Mr. Roosevelt finds himself increasingly challenged to show cause why the United States, 3,000 miles away, could not stay out of a European war more easily than five European countries on the scene—Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Switzerland—kept out of the world war.

Indications are not wanting that this distrust of the President's policy and resolve to stay in session to protect the country from its implications are the result of the deluge of letters and telegrams senators and representatives recently have begun to receive from constituents betraying fears that the nation is heading into war.

Pressure for Modification.

The demand for a prolonged session is the product, however, not only of the motive to curb Mr. Roosevelt's impulses toward war but of pressure for repeal and modification of New Deal legislation which, according to the Republicans and the conservative Democrats and the business community generally, is hampering recovery. Probably the latter is a minor factor. Probably if it were the only consideration congress could not be persuaded to spend a torrid summer in Washington.

Therefore, to the extent to which fear of Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy impels congress to stay on guard his foreign policy will prove a boomerang for the President. For in a protracted session congress will have time to attack New Deal legislation which otherwise would be spared.

Mr. Roosevelt has been successful so far in heading off revision of most of the New Deal measures under fire. He has surrendered, to be sure, to the movement initiated by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] to reduce social security taxes and place the system on a pay as you go basis. But he has successfully resisted up to date all efforts to equalize the rights of employers and employés under the labor relations act and to lighten the tax burden on business.

AXIS PARTNERS TO SIGN PLEDGE OF MILITARY AID

British-French Bloc Gets Setback.

MILAN, Italy, May 7.—(AP)—Italy and Germany announced today their intention of signing a political and military accord "to contribute effectively to assuring peace in Europe."

The announcement was made in a communique issued immediately after the conclusion of the two day talks between Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italy's foreign minister, and Joachim von Ribbentrop, Germany's foreign minister.

[The pact was interpreted in London as a blow against the British-French front. It crushed hopes of the British government of driving a wedge between the Rome-Berlin axis partners by weaning Italy away from Germany. Paris diplomats expressed fear that the pact meant a renewal of pressure on Poland to force acceptance of German demands concerning Danzig and Pomorze [the Polish corridor]. In Warsaw leading Poles said the pact would not affect Polish determination to defend its rights. Observers in Germany said the pact was demanded by Nazi army leaders to strengthen the military position of Germany in Italy. However, they declared it meant a lull in German and Italian expansion moves for a time. Meanwhile German army circles pressed Hitler to make a rapprochement with soviet Russia. There were other indications that an agreement between Hitler and Stalin is near.]

Text of Communique.

The text of the communique follows:

"In the conversations which the foreign minister, Count Ciano, and the foreign minister of the reich, Von Ribbentrop, had on May 6 and 7 the present general political situation was examined with care.

"The perfect identity of view of the two governments was confirmed once again and it was decided to establish the relation of the two states of the axis definitly as well as from the formal point of view in a political and military pact. In this way Italy and Germany intended to contribute effectively to assuring peace in Europe."

Silent on Danzig Question.

Some surprise was occasioned by the failure of the communique to refer to the German-Polish controversy over the Free City of Danzig and Pomorze [the Polish corridor] which was understood to have formed an important subject in the talks.

Fascists, however, said they interpreted the announcement as meaning that Italy left Germany free to deal with the issue in her own way, promising her military support if a conflict should result.

But the hope was expressed in Fascist circles that a peaceful settlement of German-Polish problems would be achieved. Fascists said they believed that the italian-German accord would tend to persuade Poland to adopt a less uncompromising attitude toward German demands.

Reply to France, Britain.

The military accord was considered in political circles as intended above all to be a reply to what Fascists call the French-British policy of encirclement of the totalitarian states.

The partnership known as the Rome-Berlin axis in which Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini have worked together hitherto has been an informal, unwritten arrangement.

The decision to convert the axis into a formal political and military alliance insured that the two nations would fight side by side in any European war, it was said.

But though political circles regarded it as a step in a counter-attack against the French-British front, an authoritative Fascist insisted that the alliance was "not directed against any one."

Known as Pact of Milan.

The treaty is to be known as the pact of Milan and its precise terms probably will be agreed upon within two weeks, after which ratifications will be exchanged.

Some Fascists expressed the view Italy now would tend to exert a moderating influence on German policy in order to protect herself against becoming involved in a war in which her own interests were not directly at stake.

They said it was likely that Italy

LOOKING FOR A NEW MOUNT

New Deal Lake Offers Fish to Angry Farmers

Marion, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—Residents of the land to be flooded by Congressman Kent E. Keller's New Deal Crab Orchard lake project learned today that Keller has asked for a congressional appropriation to pay for the removal of 1,500 graves in a dozen cemeteries.

Removal of the dead, some of whom have been buried for nearly 100 years has been one of the objections to the Crab Orchard lake project from which Keller has promised his constituents all the fish they can eat. Despite the promise of plenty of fish, farmers in the district are objecting to eviction from their homes which will be flooded.

Another objection to the creation of a fine fishing lake is its cost. A million dollars must be paid to the evicted farmers and $2,500,000 more is the cost of damming Orchard creek to create a lake eight miles long.

Keller Wins U. S. Cash.

Crab Orchard lake is the first big WPA project Keller, a Democrat, has been able to obtain for his 25th congressional district. Recently he got the government to build a veterans' hospital in Marion for the use of veterans in the southern district of Illinois.

Returning to Marion recently to taken part in a celebration over landing the veterans' hospital, Keller made a speech promising his constituents that southern Illinois by virtue of liberal federal funds would become "what the good Lord intended it to be."

"After Crab Orchard lake," he said, "we are going to build Murphysboro lake which the President has promised to me."

Keller also promised his Marion audience that a power plant would be built at the foot of Crab Orchard dam which would use coal and water to make the cheapest power in the world. He predicted that vast industrial plants would be drawn to the district.

Promises a Paradise.

"This will be a land of beauty, sunshine and song and permanent prosperity," the congressman said. "Then we will be able to keep our boys and girls at home instead of sending them some place else to work. When they are out of school they can go to work.

"John can propose to Mary because we can say to him, 'Here is a job you can have as long as you want it and when you don't want it any more there will be a pension when you get old.'

"Three hundred and fifty veterans will come to this hospital. They will live here for the rest of their lives and they can go out to Crab Orchard lake to fish whenever they want to.

"Fifty thousand other people will come here to visit the lake. They tell me that after the lake is stocked they will have to seine from a million to a million and a half pounds of fish from the lake each year to keep the fish from taking the lake from us."

Sweet Scented Apple Jam.

In his campaign literature last fall Keller published pictures of Crab Orchard lake and promised still further delights.

Then he said Crab Orchard lake's shores would be lined with crab apple trees and that in the spring the air would be filled with a delicate perfume and the blossoms would exceed in beauty the famous Potomac park cherry trees in Washington, D. C.

Keller added that in the fall crab apples would cover the ground, the air would be filled with a delicate aroma and there would be crab apple preserves for every one.

KENNEDY TO QUIT? LONDON PAPER SAYS SO, BUT HE DENIES IT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 7.—Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to London from the United States, has fallen out with President Roosevelt and will give up his job here, the Reynolds News said today. Myron C. Taylor, former chairman of the United States Steel corporation, was named by the newspaper as Kennedy's successor.

In making the announcement the paper said Kennedy refused to confirm or deny that there had been a rift, but added that "in American circles in London the split between the ambassador and his chief has been discussed for some time."

The Daily Telegraph, in its Monday morning edition, however, quotes Kennedy as saying that the report "is too ridiculous to talk about."

WIDOW SMELLS GAS AND THEN THINGS HAPPEN

Boston, Mass., May 7.—(AP)—A widow, Mrs. E. Nellie Dunne, smelled gas in her apartment and got a neighbor, Albert J. Finn, to investigate. He lit a match, explored a dark closet, and was knocked down by the explosion which bowled over the widow with him. The concussion tipped a flower pot from a window sill and it fell on the street hitting a passing boy, John Russell, on the head. The widow and her neighbor were treated by doctors for burns. The boy was taken to his home for treatment from a medicine chest.

Children Give Up Playground to a Little Bird

BY MARCIA WINN.

Eleven days ago a graceful little bronze hued bird the size of a robin, a white ring around her neck and two black bands on her white breast, fluttered down onto a baseball diamond at the Monroe school in Hinsdale.

For a minute she stood teetering on her long, thin legs and then settled down composedly on a rocky little patch of ground near third base. And the Hinsdale children, who had been playing baseball there with the ferocity of spring, moved quietly and solemnly away. The killdeer had come again.

Nest for Years on Diamonds.

Every year for ten years a killdeer has come to the Monroe playground, once a swampy marsh. Every year it comes to one of the school's two baseball diamonds. And every year, during May, the children renounce one-fourth of their play area in order that a killdeer [whose name comes from its plaintive, penetrating cry, "Kill-deer! Kill-deer!] may nest and breed her young.

No one may play near the nest. No one wants to. No one dares. An invisible, imaginary line, as fixed as the international date line, is drawn around the rocks on which the little bird sits with three darkly speckled eggs beneath her.

Guard Against Pop Flies.

For fear that some child, too young to appreciate how lovely and wondrous this tradition has become, might foolishly stumble over the nest, the older children have surrounded it with a tiny circle of sticks. To them, it is a veritable ring of fire.

Two bold signs caution all who can read with "Do Not Disturb" and "Don't Come Too Close." And only veteran baseball men can go to bat on the adjacent diamond. Amateurs might bat the ball toward the killdeer.

Jail Candidate for Sherif; Resisted Officer with Ax

Valparaiso, Ind., May 7.—[Special.]—Clayton Phillips, Democratic candidate for sherif, was fined $100 and sentenced to six months at Indiana state penal farm by Judge Mark Rockwell in Porter county Superior court today for resisting an officer with a deadly weapon. Phillips, it was alleged, swung an ax at Sherif Freeman Lane when the sherif served a warant on him on a child stealing charge in a domestic relations case.

Fighting their way down into a well which experts say was filled with black damp, dread gas of the coal mines, rescuers saved a Boy Scout from death yesterday at his home north of Arlington Heights. But one of the rescuers, the boy's next door neighbor, paid with his life for his heroism. The gas overcame him and he could not be taken from the well in time to be revived.

The Boy Scout is William Bessemer, 14 years old. He had descended to a platform nine feet down in the 140 foot well to oil an electric pump. His mother, Mrs. Gizella Bessemer, was horrified when she strolled to the well and found that he was about to faint.

William stretched his hands up to her in an appeal for help. Reaching down, she touched his hands just as collapsed on the platform.

Screams Bring Rescuers.

Her screams brought Michael Stein, 48 years old, running from the dinner table at his home next door. Stein went down the ladder into the darkness. Before he could raise the boy he was overcome himself.

By this time two other neighbors had arrived. They are Louis Spasojevich, 22 years old, and his brother, Thomas, 26. They knotted towels into a rope. Holding their breath, they descended and drew the boy out with the rope.

Going down again, they tried to remove Stein, but he was too heavy to move in the brief time they could stay amid the gas.

Meanwhile Chief George K. Volz arrived with the Arlington Heights firemen. Wearing a gas mask, Fireman Walter Duenn went to the rescue.

He found the mask no protection against the deadly fumes and sank unconscious to the platform. Chief Volz and other firemen succeeded in placing ropes around Stein and Duenn and both were taken from the well.

Firemen Revive Two.

Firemen worked over all three victims with an inhalator for 30 minutes. The boy and the fireman were revived, but Stein had been in the well too long. Dr. C. A. Starck of Palatine said that Stein's corpulence and the fact that he had just eaten a heavy dinner had both worked against his recovery. Stein's wife was prostrated by the tragedy.

Dr. Starck said there was no doubt that black damp was responsible. It forms in the earth, he said, and moves between the strata until it collects in a mine pocket, well, or some similar chamber. The well at the Bessemer home, on Chestnut road, was dug 40 feet down and then drilled 100 feet farther. It is five feet in diameter in the 40 foot section at the top.

SENECA INDIANS DEFY N.Y. TO HOLD THEM TO ITS LAW

Akron, N. Y., May 7.—(AP)—Chiefs of the Seneca nation sent to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman today a declaration of independence from New York state laws, which they held were not applicable to them as wards of the federal government. Descendants of the Iroquois Indians who established a forest democracy centuries before the coming of the white man, the Senecas charged state legislation trespassed on the prerogatives of their council.

"No man or body of men," they stated in a resolution, "is as well qualified to direct the internal affairs of our nation as the council of chiefs, they being on the premises and knowing so well the conditions that exist thereon."

Solon Skye, president of the Tonawanda band, said his people objected to state laws directly affecting the Senecas and to attempted enforcement of general state laws affecting crime, hunting and fishing and highway trafic.

SAMSON CANNOT BE TRUSTED TO HANDLE MONEY

New Orleans, La., May 7.—(AP)—For the second time William O'Brien, a keeper at Audubon park zoo, is bemoaning his losses in a bank failure.

Eight years ago he lost money when a bank closed. Since that time he has been keeping deposits and withdrawals from a niche under the floor boards in the cage of Samson, the lion.

Friday night, with Samson standing guard, he placed a crisp $5 bill in the niche alongside ten crackling one spots. Yesterday he found the floor torn up, Samson placidly licking his chops, and green confetti littering the cage.

"That," said O'Brien, mournfully, "was my bankroll."

ILLINOIS GROUP CONDEMNS RULE OF MILK PRICES

Finds Control Fails in Other States.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—A unanimous report condemning political control of milk prices was filed with State Director of Agriculture J. H. Lloyd today by a committee which in the last two weeks investigated the operation of such control laws in six states.

Dr. H. A. Ruehe.

A bill to enact a similar law for Illinois will receive a public hearing before the house of representatives here on Thursday. It is being advocated by the Illinois Agricultural association as a measure to increase farmers' receipts from milk sold for fluid consumption.

See Only Few Benefit.

Opponents of the bill declare that relatively few farmers can hope to benefit from the enactment of such a law, which they insist will be at the expense of the consumers and other milk producers. From A. J. Surratt, state and federal statistician, it was learned that while 83 per cent of the farms of Illinois have one or more cows, only 12.45 per cent of the state's farmers sell to the fluid market.

The report to Director Lloyd said that a system of milk control, in operation in some other states and as proposed by Illinois, has boosted retail prices, has hurt dealers obeying the law, and also has been detrimental to agriculture.

Dr. Ruehe Heads Body.

The conclusion was indorsed by committee members representing a variety of interests.

Heading the investigation under appointment by Lieut. Gov. John Stelle with the approval of Gov. Henry Horner was Dr. H. A. Ruehe of the University of Illinois. Arthur Hartman, Hampshire, served for the Chicago milk producers council; for consumers, Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, president, Chicago Housewives league; for organized labor, Frank J. Gillespie, secretary, Chicago Dairy Workers union, and for dealers, Arthur R. Buehring, De Kalb, president, Illinois Dairy Products association.

The first half of the report, devoted to studies in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, reads: "It would seem that the experience of these markets is indicative of results to be expected should a milk control law be established in Illinois."

Control Fails to Lower Prices.

"In no case," the report continues, "did the committee find that the price of milk to the consumer has been lowered either by federal or state control. On the other hand, there was much evidence to show that control laws increased the retail price of milk.

"From the evidence presented, it is obvious that the consumption of fluid milk is being curtailed due to the high cost to the consumer. There is a marked increase in the consumption of evaporated milk in these eastern metropolitan areas studied. Consumers can buy their food nutriments in the form of evaporated milk at less than half the cost of fluid milk.

"Milk control in the eastern markets has increased the price paid to farmers for that portion of milk used for fluid distribution, but has decreased the price of milk produced in excess of the fluid requirements. It has lowered the blended price which the producer receives for the total amount of milk sold.

Seek to Improve Price.

"The control boards have attempted to improve the blended price by increasing the price paid for milk used for fluid purposes. This has resulted in a large increase in production in all milk sheds studied by the committee."

The committee found that the surplus is sold for manufacturing of cheese, butter, and similar articles, with the farmers receiving a much lower price than for the fluid milk. Any increase in the fluid prices in Illinois, such as might be expected from a control law, would swell the overproduction, shrinking the prices received for all of their milk by all of the Illinois farmers with the possible exception of the 12.45 per cent on the fluid market, according to members of the committee.

Even this 12.45 per cent, however, judging from the eastern precedent, would receive a lower blend price for their total production because a smaller portion of their production would be bottled.

The second half of the report covered Wisconsin and Indiana. It was approved by four members of the committee, Mr. Gillespie being unable to make the trip.

In Wisconsin it was found that only 3 per cent of the state's total milk production went into bottles in those markets where the control board maintained prices. From 90 to 92 per cent of Wisconsin's milk goes into manufacturing.

"Buyers of the 97 per cent contend [statement of director of markets] that milk control works a hardship on their operations by diverting excess milk into their channels, lowering the price paid for manufactured products.

Discrimination Is Found.

"Discrimination is shown by city inspection and producer coöperatives as to number and personnel of producers admitted to local fluid [premium] markets. Although different individuals were producing milk of apparently equal quality, some were favored with the control price of $2.10 for the portion used for fluid purposes, whereas neighboring farmers were forced to sell all of their milk at prices of 90 cents to $1.19 per hundredweight.

As for Indiana, the committee reported that the pay rollers who administer the law enthusiastically indorse its continuance, saying that it has been highly beneficial to farmers and to the industry as a whole. The consumers, who ultimately pay the bill, the committee learned, are not benefited.

The investigators found that the regimented Hoosier farmers are receiving no more for their production than are the free farmers of Illinois. Furthermore, the report said that milk control gives an unfair advantage to combination plants buying surplus milk, unfair competition with condenseries and creameries.

RELIEF ACTION EXPECTED

Plans to revamp the public aid administrative setup to achieve economy will be advanced in the state senate this week after the house has decided the fate of a proposed increase of $3,000,000 in state relief grants for May and June.

Senator Ward.

Senator Harold G. Ward, Mayor Kelly's spokesman in the upper chamber, said yesterday that his bills to replace the Illinois Emergency Relief commission with a permanent department of public assistance will be called up for action Wednesday.

"The senate will be given a chance to take a long range view of relief and to improve the system," Ward said. "These bills are the result of many surveys and studies and are designed to save money in administration."

Ward's bills provide that effective Oct. 1, a new department of public assistance would take over duties of the IERC and of the department of public welfare as to the handling of old pensions, blind pensions, and aid for dependent mothers and children. County departments of public assistance would be created to administer the various forms of aid in communities requiring state or federal funds in addition to local resources.

Sponsors assert that the program would centralize the present scattered administrative units. There now are 1,453 township and county units in the relief setup under the IERC.

Boost Fails to Rally Votes.

The emergency $3,000,000 relief increase pending in the house failed to obtain the required 102 votes last week. Further consideration was postponed.

Another effort to pass the measure will be made tonight or tomorrow. Meanwhile, 107,000 Chicago relief families will continue to draw 75 per cent of normal aid.

The $3,000,000 would be paid out of state general funds. If the appropriation is made it would wipe out most of the surplus that state officials hoped would exist in the treasury July 1, end of the two year bookkeeping period. In the proposed budget it was estimated that $12,000,000 would be on hand July 1, minus whatever deficiency appropriations were made before then. Thus far this session the legislature has passed emergency spending bills totaling $8,506,759.

COLLEGE YOUTH SEIZED AS SLAYER OF 2 IN ARIZONA

Arrested in Tennessee as He Leaves Church.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 7.—[Special.]—Robert M. Burgunder Jr., young college student who is charged in Phoenix, Ariz., with the murder of two automobile salesmen, Ellis M. Koury and Jack Peterson, was arrested at Johnson City, Tenn., this morning. Tonight he was in the jail here. Burgunder denied he killed the salesmen, but declared, "I want to face the music alone."

Burgunder, who is 22 years old, was driven to the Knoxville jail by his captor, Sherif Earl Sell, of Johnson City and a heavy guard. He will be turned over to Phoenix officers who are due to arrive by plane tomorrow.

On the way here Burgunder expressed fear he would be hanged and discussed "the perfect crime" with Sherif Sell. The sherif quoted him as saying he "hoped some day to be able to beat crime." He also said that he had studied crime while working with his father when the latter was county prosecutor in Seattle, Wash.

Asks Parents to Stay Out.

Asked by reporters whether or not he killed Koury and Peterson he replied: "One wrong word might hang me, but I'm not guilty of murder." He was asked about his parents, who are divorced. His father lives in Seattle and his mother in Alhambra, Cal. "I told them to stay out of this thing," Burgunder said, "and to let me fight it out alone."

Once in jail Burgunder wrote telegrams to his parents. They were withheld pending arrival of the Phoenix officers. To his father he wrote: "Stay out of this. I knew what I was doing and will take the consequences." To his mother he wrote: "Stay in Alhambra."

Burgunder's arrest in Johnson City ended a nine day search for him. He arrived there Thursday. He was arrested by Sherif Sell when he left the First Christian church, where he had attended services. A reward of $500 for his capture was offered by the state of Arizona.

3,000 Miles from Scene.

Parked near the church was the car in which the salesmen and Burgunder drove away from a Phoenix automobile agency a week ago yesterday. He had driven 2,950 miles since Koury and Peterson disappeared. Their bodies were found in a desert wash last Friday. They had been shot to death.

"The boy first told me his name was Bob Lesser," said Sherif Sell, "but after we questioned him further he admitted he was Robert M. Burgunder Jr., and that he was wanted by police.

"He said the first he knew of the double slaying was when he heard it over his radio and later when he read an account of the slaying in a newspaper."

"When the fugitive came to Johnson City last Thursday," Sherif Sell said, "he went to the East Tennessee Teachers' college and told some of the students he was going to enroll. He said he had a monthly allowance of $150.

"The son of W. B. Dubbs, who managed the Johnson City baseball club last year, told Burgunder he might find a room in his home.

"The young man was so nervous, that Dubbs became suspicious when he read the newspaper about the Arizona slaying. Dubbs finally went to my brother, Mayor Marion Sell, and confided his suspicions."

Does Not Resist Arrest.

He did not resist arrest, the sherif said. Officers found an automatic pistol in the automobile he had been using.

Burgunder was paroled last fall from a Washington state reformatory where he was serving a sentence for a drug store robbery. Psychiatrists reported he was impelled to robbery because of knowledge obtained in the office of his father, formerly prosecutor in Seattle, Wash.

Sherif Flies to Tennessee.

Phoenix, Ariz., May 7.—Sherif Lon Jordan and County Attorney Richard F. Harless left by plane today for Johnson City, Tenn., after authorities had notified him they had arrested Robert M. Burgunder Jr., 22 years old, charged with having killed Jack Peterson and Ellis M. Koury, Phoenix automobile salesmen.

NEW YORK WARRING ON BEGGING RACKET; PUBLIC IS WARNED

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—A war of extermination against the $15,000,000 a year begging racket in this city was announced today by city officials.

As a step in the campaign to safeguard legitimate charities and to protect world's fair visitors Mayor Fiorello La Guardia appealed to all transit companies to post cards in subways, elevated trains, surface cars, and buses notifying the public that relief was available to all genuinely needy persons and that the only way to stamp out begging was to stop giving money to panhandlers.

Commissioner of Welfare William Hodson estimated that there were at least 10,000 "fakes and phonies" soliciting alms in New York City. He told of one blind musician who had refused to quit begging unless the welfare department guaranteed him a relief allowance of $125 a month, the minimum amount the man said he could make playing a violin in the streets. The average blind person on relief receives about one-fifth this amount.

BOAT CAPSIZES; FATHER TRIES IN VAIN TO SAVE SON

Kenosha, Wis., May 7.—[Special.]—A father tried in vain today to rescue his 17 year old son from drowning when the boat in which they were sailing from Waukegan to Kenosha capsized in a Lake Michigan squall.

The father is Charles Excell Sr., 42 years old, a Waukegan machine shop foreman. The Excells left Waukegan shortly after noon in their 16 foot sloop. Six miles south of Kenosha the boat was caught in the squall and capsized. Motorists saw the boat in distress and notified Kenosha police, who called the coast guard.

A speedboat failed to discover the boat. Returning to the station for a surfboat guardsmen went back and found the father holding on to the overturned sloop with one arm and to his son's waist with the other. They pulled both into the boat and headed for shore, where a first aid corps worked with an inhalator. The father was taken to the Kenosha hospital, suffering from shock. The son was dead.

TAVERN SLAYERS AND GIRL PAL ARE BACK IN CHICAGO

Orville Watson and Edward Riley, alias Ryan, ex-convicts, were brought back to Chicago from Detroit, Mich., early today to face charges of murdering an undertaker and shooting two policemen in a holdup battle in a tavern at 4623 North Western avenue last Tuesday. With them was Sue Smith, alleged accessory. They were arrested in Detroit a few days after the battle.

Three police automobiles were used to return the trio. Riley and Watson rode with Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan and Sergt. Jack Hanrahan. The girl rode with Capt. Dan Lynch, Policeman James Dyer, and Policewoman Mary Powers. Assistant State's Attorney Blair Varnes and Policeman Tim O'Connor followed.

Riley, who has served 16 years in prison, told Sullivan he did not want to serve any more time in prison, and would plead guilty "if I can get the chair." Watson said he would rather be alive in prison.

Ousted from WPA Rolls, Alien Hangs Self in Home

Joseph Jadlec, a Czecho-Slovakian, lost his job when aliens were ordered removed from WPA rolls. Yesterday he hanged himself in his home at 1711 South Laflin street. He was 57 years old. His wife, Barbara, found the body.

1,000 WILL SEEK WAY TO REDUCE JUVENILE DELINQUENCY TODAY

More than 1,000 persons, interested in correcting juvenile crime and delinquency, will attend the eighth annual state conference on delinquency prevention today at Waukegan. The three day session, sponsored by the state and the Big Brothers and Sisters Association of Illinois, was called by Lieut. Gov. Stelle.

Speakers include Sanford Bates, executive director of the Boys' Clubs of America; Lieut. Harry M. Costello of the Chicago police; Judge J. M. Braude of the Boys' court; County Judge Harlington Wood of Sangamon county, and William D. Knight, president of the Illinois Bar association.

Gardener His Spokesman; Pledges Warm May.

Even August Koch, chief horticulturist for the park district, admitted yesterday that Chicago probably will have no more snow this spring. In fact, he said, we may expect a warm May.

A Tulip Twosome.

Mr. Koch made this prediction as his parks foamed with new green leaves, carpets of blue violets and bright, wide ribbons of tulips. He based it on his guide for twenty-seven years of Chicago gardening — the moon. Even the tulips, 700,000 of them, were planted by the moon, and all are coming into full bloom now, just as the moon willed it.

The Moon's Gospel to Him.

People laugh at Mr. Koch, he says, because he thinks the moon's behavior is as important to a catalpa tree as to a lovesick couple. They call him old-fashioned, he says, but they can't say his flowers freeze.

The moon, which right now is a lopsided orange ball, tells Mr. Koch that May, in general, will be warm. There will be a few days of cool temperatures, it says, but rain, such as yesterday's thunderstorm, will be somewhat scarce. Weather Forecaster J. R. Lloyd, incidentally, also says today will be cooler.

Warm weather the last few days has made Chicago's trees pop into sudden leaf, Mr. Koch said. The elm and maple, most common of all, are decked out in fragile, crisp greenery; the oak is shedding its long, soft blossoms, a prelude to leafing. Only the locust and black locust and the catalpa still are bare.

All the catalpa needs, he says, is a good, warm rain, such as yesterday's, and weather above 60 degrees for a few more days. Give it a week, and it will be budded. It won't bloom, however, until June.

Blossoms Are Everywhere.

In parks and forest preserves the pink blossoms of the crab apple and the white of the hawthorne are everywhere. So are the wild violets. In Humboldt park there are thousands of violets, planted years ago as a ground covering. They make a soft, blue haze. In shady, wooded spots a few spring beauties may still be found.

But if city dwellers are planning to set out their petunia plants now they had better wait a week, Mr. Koch says. The moon says May 14, quite regardless of the fact that woodland mosquitoes, their mating time here, already are out and trying to bite.

TORRIO BIDS LOOP GOOD-BY ON WAY TO A PRISON CELL

Clears Capone in 'Squeal'; Not Mad at Any One.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

John Torrio, racketeer and gangster who taught the tricks of the trade to Al Capone of Chicago and Dutch Schultz of New York, paused here yesterday on his way to the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas.

His departure Saturday from New York had been unannounced. So was his arrival in Chicago. But, like a ghost out of the past, he was reported in loop haunts late yesterday surrounded by friends and accompanied by two genial guards.

Torrio is about to begin serving a sentence of 2½ years for income tax evasion. He may be transferred to another federal prison at any time. His last previous appearance was in New York City April 22 when he paid the government $100,000 as delayed income tax.

Policy Racket Fortune Bared.

The government brought Torrio to trial last month on charges that he had cheated the government out of at least $86,000 on his income during 1933, 1934, and 1935. Federal agents started to prove that Torrio, who had made millions out of prohibition, amassed a new fortune out of New York's policy racket.

But on April 11, after he had pleaded guilty and his trial was in progress, Torrio notified the court he had changed his mind and would plead guilty to escape a possible sentence of 12 years.

At 4:40 yesterday afternoon Torrio arrived at the Dearborn station on the Nickle Plate railroad. A drawing room for three had been reserved on a Santa Fe train leaving at 9 o'clock, allowing the fallen gangster four and one-half hours in the city.

Has No Complaints to Make.

Presumably his traveling companions were two deputy United States marshals. One of them said they were Tom McGuire and John Mason. The others gave their names as Albert Gibson and James Griffin. An ordinary prisoner would have been taken to the detective bureau between trains. But not Torrio.

"Where have you been, John?" Torrio was asked as he sauntered to his drawing room. "Have you been calling on Chicago friends?"

Shake of Head Clears Capone.

"What is there to say?" he countered, and grinned. "I have no complaint to make. I'm cheerful enough. And I'm not mad at anybody."

"What about your old friend Capone," he was asked. "Did he do you any harm in the fifty page statement he was supposed to have made to the government about you?"

"What do you think?" he parried. But he shook his head as if to indicate that Capone had not intended any harm to him.

"Well, you might say something about Chicago, where you and Capone both made your first millions," it was suggested.

"I like Chicago and I am sorry to be leaving it," Torrio said.

"Leavenworth isn't as bad as Alcatraz," a friend said.

"Yes, there is some fresh air there," Torrio replied.

"Have you any plans?"

Brought Capone to Chicago.

Torrio was a New York gangster in his youth. He came to Chicago prior to the war. When prohibition arrived he was vice lord of the city. The murder of Big Jim Colosimo in 1920 gave Torrio his big chance. From vice boss he became bootleg boss. He brought Capone here as a young thug who would enforce Torrio orders with bullets.

Torrio was the most prominent booze gang chief in the country until he was shot by members of the George [Bugs] Moran gang in 1925. Then he decided to move his headquarters to New York, leaving his organization to Capone and the field to others not so pistol shy. It was not until after the slaying of Arthur Flegenheimer, alias Dutch Schultz, in 1935, that Torrio's power in the east became fully known. He was always the No. 1 gangster in New York, federal agents said.

Mount Carroll, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Ethel Adams, at liberty under $2,500 bond on a charge of attempted assault against her husband, Charles Adams, was in seclusion today at the home of her parents. John Solt was in the Carroll county jail unable to obtain $2,500 bail.

John Solt.

Adams was at his farm home stunned by the charge that his wife and Solt had conspired to end his life.

Solt, handsome widower 27 years old, told State's Attorney John L. Brearton about the plot to kill Adams, who is 54, and make the slaying appear to be a suicide. He said he agreed to the conspiracy at the request of Mrs. Solt, 37. Solt told Brearton that Mrs. Adams spoke vaguely about taking care of him.

The plot against Adams' life failed because Solt frightened Adams and he fled before, it is charged, Solt had a chance to stun him with a hammer and hang him from a rafter in Adams' barn. Adams went to his hay mow, saw a masked man, fell off a ladder and ran for aid.

JUDGE MATCHETT, THE 'OLD ROMAN,' EVER A STUDENT

Regarded as Authority on Constitutional Law.

[This is the fourth of a series of colorful stories on candidates in the Cook county judicial election of June 5. Careers of sitting judges will be reviewed first.]

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

Judge David F. Matchett is known to his colleagues in the Illinois Appellate court as the "Old Roman." This vigorous spoken, humorous eyed man is regarded as an authority on constitutional law, a heritage developed from his student days at Cornell university where he received training from two great teachers—Charles Evans Hughes, now chief justice of the United States, and the late Moses Coit Tyler.

Judge Matchett.

Judge Matchett, who is 72 years old, is a Republican and a candidate for reëlection to the Circuit court, from where he has been assigned to the Appellate bench for twenty-two years. He is running on the Democratic ticket with twenty other sitting judges, of whom seven also are Republicans.

Judge Still a Student.

He never has ceased being a student—books on law and history, philosophy, and ethics are his frequent companions. Whether in politics or in opinions from the bench on intricate points, his utterances have been logical in delivery and forceful and to the point.

Judge Matchett was born of pioneer parents in Newton, Ia., on March 19, 1867. He attended the rural schools and several academies and received his B. A. degree in 1892 from Colorado college at Colorado Springs, Colo. He then entered Cornell university, receiving a law degree there in 1894.

He came to Chicago in 1895. He had a letter of introduction in his pocket from his mentor, Charles Evans Hughes, but he didn't use it. He preferred to make his own uphill battle. It wasn't easy. There were years of loneliness for the farm boy in the big city. There were days when he wondered where his next meal was coming from. There were nights of poring over law books in a 75 cent a week hall bedroom.

Gradually Builds Up Practice.

Gradually he built up his law practice and from 1905 to 1915 he was a master in chancery. In 1914 and 1915 he was chairman of the Republican county committee, being politically aligned with former United States Senator Charles Deneen. He was elected to the Circuit court in 1915.

In 1920 he ran for state's attorney, but was defeated by Robert E. Crowe. A year later Judge Matchett was one of the fourteen sitting jurists marked for a purge by a former Republican mayor.

The mayor and his city hall machine were trying to control the courts, and picked their own slate of judges. Judge Matchett's record on the bench was so excellent, however, that even some members of the city hall clique couldn't understand why his defeat was sought.

Beats City Hall Clique.

Judge Matchett, the thirteen other incumbent judges, and seven others put up a coalition ticket and soundly beat the city hall slate. Since then he has been reëlected in 1927 and 1933 on coalition tickets.

In the last few years he has been one of the judges advocating legislation to enable judges in criminal trials to fix minimum as well as maximum sentences for defendants, as a means of ending parole irregularities.

The Bar association primary last march ranked Judge Matchett fourth on the list of sitting judges deserving renomination. There were 1,714 votes for him and 117 against him. The association's grading on diligence, integrity, and ability of these judges placed him second, with a percentage of 97.67.

The association's committee on candidates picked him as one of only two judges to receive its highest tribute—that he is exceptionally qualified for office and should be renominated.

Judge Matchett lives at 6133 Ellis avenue. He is married and has two sons.

JULIE CABANNE.

Hollywood, Cal., May 7.—(AP)—Carlyle Blackwell Jr., son of the earlyday film star, and Julie Cabanne, daughter of Christy Cabanne, pioneer film director, were married at the Hollywood Congregational church today. The best man was Leo Carrillo, veteran actor. Miss Marian Weldon was maid of honor. The romance of Blackwell, 25 years old, and Miss Cabanne, 23, started five years ago when they appeared together in a picture.

NEW YORK FAIR EMPLOYES MUST SALUTE BOSSES

New York, May 7.—(AP)—The snappy young attendants at the New York World's Fair, whose uniforms imply they are no less than generals or at least a gaudy cross between the Texas Rangers and the Royal Northwest Mounted, have a new job—saluting. The pictures of a dozen top officials of the fair have been posted and the word has been passed around that they must be saluted on sight. The easiest to recognize is that much-photographed president of the whole works, Grover Whalen.

JudgeKerner to Finish Quiz of Wieboldt Drivers Today

Federal Judge Otto Kerner today will conclude his questioning of drivers and truck helpers of the Wieboldt Stores, Inc. The employés are being interviewed to learn their union attitude. Judge Kerner, who is the chairman of the three man arbitration board to settle the labor dispute between the trucking unions and the Wieboldt stores, will report his findings to the board tomorrow. Seventy-four drivers and helpers are involved in the controversy.

Clay Wall Falls, Buries Steam Shovel, Kills Driver

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—A 60 foot wall of clay and gravel collapsed on a steam shovel in a sandpit today, burying the machine and its operator, Marshall Pickett, 38 years old. Eleven other men working in the pit were unhurt.

NOBODY THIRSTS IN POLICE DRIVE ON SALOON HOURS

Some Taverns Obey Orders and Some Don't.

Chicago's 9,290 taverns and night club owners are taking in their stride the latest police drive to enforce the closing hour ordinance. A week-end survey disclosed that the tendency is to obey the law when it is strictly enforced and to cheat when it is not.

Police Commissioner Allman on Friday told police captains to enforce a city ordinance barring the sale of liquor after 1 a. m. weekdays and 2 a. m. Sundays. Taverns and package liquor stores must close at these hours. Establishments that have restaurant licenses may remain open, but must not sell liquor. Sales may be resumed at 7 a. m. weekdays and at noon Sundays.

Three Arrests Early Today.

Only mild enforcement, apparently, was attempted this morning, for only three arrests were made. Fillmore street police arrested Marty McInerney for keeping his tavern at 408 South Pulaski road open after hours.

In the Gresham district, Mat Quaill, operating a tavern at 1148 West 79th street, was seized, and in the Chicago Lawn district, John Davis, bartender at 6647 South Mozart street, was arrested. New City police issued a summons to an alleged violator, but did not arrest him.

A city-wide survey early today showed a shutdown of most drinking spots after 1 a. m. in the residential areas on the north, west, and south sides. The accepted night life areas, notably along Rush street and upper Broadway, were open much as usual.

Eating Places Open.

In general, taverns closed at 1 a. m. but eating places serving liquor did not. Some caution was observed. Peep hole inspections of prohibition speakeasy days were revived. Elsewhere drinks were not served at bars, but only at tables. In others only established friends were admitted.

Night clubs supposedly are prohibited from selling liquor at bars or tables after the closing hours. But brief visits disclosed that no thirsty patron suffered.

One club manager said he had received no official notice about the closing hours. And if he did, the manager confessed, he probably would have to "sneak"—somewhat in the manner of the prohibition speakeasy. His patrons would demand it, he said.

Honkeytonks Ignore Order.

In taverns having back rooms or pseudo dance floors, the closing hour was not obeyed and liquor flowed freely. The honkeytonks ignored the orders.

With few exceptions, police were lenient. One captain said that if cheaters do not obey the law their licenses will be revoked.

Police used the license threat to good avail last year when Mayor Kelly campaigned to stop the sale of liquor to minors. Scores of tavern owners were arrested and fined.

In November, 1937, the city council considered imposing special license fees as a revenue measure on night owl taverns. Several aldermen suggested that graft allegedly paid for the privileges of remaining open after hours might as well come to the city treasury in legal revenue.

Yesterday many tavern owners and club operators considered another dodge to avoid the loss of night owl patronage. They suggested that a patron might buy as many drinks as he wants before closing, line them up like ten pins, and drink them leisurely after hours.

Police captains were divided on the legality of this procedure. In an unofficial opinion, First Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman held that this was legal on the ground that the law applied to the dispenser of liquor and not to the consumer.

7 CHINESE ALTAR BOYS AND 3 GIRLS BAPTIZED IN CATHOLIC CHURCH

Few persons attending mass at historic old St. Peter's church at Polk and Clark streets have failed to notice the quick, impassive little Chinese acolytes serving the priest at the altar.

For the last five years seven little Chinese boys, now ranging in age from 10 to 16, have assisted the Rev. Leander Conley, pastor, and the other Franciscan priests. None, however, had been baptized in the Catholic faith until yesterday.

Then, at an afternoon service, the seven boys and three Chinese girls, all members of two Chinese families, were baptized. Sister Mary Henrita, principal of St. Peter's parochial school, which they attend, said they were the first Chinese convert class in Chicago. Next Sunday they will make their first communion.

They are Frank, Benny, Louis, Henry, Donny, and Mabel Chan, all of 504 South Clark street, and Edward, David, Betty, and Blanche Lee, all of 510 South Clark street. To further their education, the church is conducting a "mile of pennies" movement. A mile of pennies is 84,460 pennies or $844.60. They have now progressed 707 feet on the mile, or $113.41.

BURY MYSTERY WOMAN TODAY, YEAR AFTER LEAP

An unidentified woman who plunged to her death from the roof of a state street department store a year ago will be buried today in Oak Hill cemetery. Police have been unable to identify her. The body has been held in a cemetery vault. The woman escaped early burial in potters' field because she left behind a purse containing $650. Authorities ordered that the money be used for burial expenses. The woman was about 53 years old and was well dressed.

Loop Telegraph Office Robbed Twice in 48 Hours

The Western Union Telegraph company office in the Board of Trade building, 141 West Jackson street, was held up last night for the second time in 48 hours. A bandit menaced John Koscielski, 3148 West 66th street, assistant cashier, last night and robbed him of $30. On Friday night a bandit obtained $100 from Robert Lindstrom, 4309 North Lawndale avenue, the manager.

JAPS STRIVE FOR WAY OUT OF HIGH COSTA RICA TARIF

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, May 7.—Costa Rica's 100 per cent tarif surcharge on Japanese goods has brought J. Futagami, representative of the huge Mitsui Trading company, and A. Amano, head of important businesses in Latin America, here to find a way for Japan to sell without buying.

The minister of finance, in an interview with Futagami, said that the law could not be repealed because it was passed to protect the vital interests of the country, which must buy from countries to which it sells.

In a statement to the press, he pointed out that Costa Rica does not send samples nor maintain sales agencies in Japan, although he did not explain how that was possible when the country's exports there amount to only a few thousand dollars a year.

The Japanese cotton plantation, which has been considered a threat to the Panama canal because of its possible use as an airfield, was not mentioned by Futagami, although heretofore it has been in the forefront of Japanese trade propaganda.

Amano owns a fishing yacht now based at Punta Renas though formerly it was based at Panama, where foreigners are prohibited from fishing the waters.

He also owns shops in Panama, which is the distribution center of Japanese goods in Latin America and operates a large ranch in Chile, breeding horses for the Japanese army.

ICKES' FOSTER SON AND CHICAGO GIRL ON HONEYMOON

Elope to Ohio After Her Family Objects.

Robert H. Ickes, foster son of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, was honeymooning yesterday with the former Miss Marcelle Charlotte Levine of 5526 Cornell avenue. They eloped and were married Saturday night at Lisbon, O.

Ickes is 25 years old. His bride, who was graduated last June from the Starrett School for Girls, is 19.

Her brother, Bernard, disclosed yesterday that her family had opposed the romance throughout the five years she has been acquainted with young Ickes.

Bride's Mother Out of City.

Levine said his mother, Mrs. Bessie Levine, is in Dallas, Tex., where she was called by the illness of her own mother. Marcelle left home last Wednesday night, he said, telegraphing later that she was visiting a girl friend in Pittsburgh, Pa., where Ickes is employed as an engineer.

Levine said news of the marriage came in another telegram yesterday. In this message the couple asked the family blessing on their wedding.

Ohio Waives Five-Day Law.

Levine said his family takes a home in Wilmette each summer. The Ickes home is in neighboring Winnetka. For the last two years, Levine said, his sister has been seeing Ickes frequently.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. W. Kennedy of the Lisbon Methodist church. He said yesterday he did not know Ickes was the foster son of the Secretary of the Interior. The minister said the attendants identified themselves as a Mr. Middleman and a Mrs. Kelley.

Lois Armstrong, deputy court clerk, waived Ohio's five-day notice requirement and issued the marriage license immediately.

The bride's mother refused to discuss the wedding when she was reached last night in Texas.

Clings to Pilings an Hour to Save Self from Death

Paul Schnabel, 57 years old, clung to pilings in the Chicago river for nearly an hour to stave off drowning early today. He accidentally fell into the river at Wells street. Schnabel's strength was almost gone before his cries for help were overheard by Edward A. Garvey, who was working in his office supply company at 325 North Wells street. Garvey called police, who notified the Wells street bridgetenders. They soon rescued Schnabel.

JAPAN MUM ON ITALIAN-GERMAN WAR ALLIANCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 8.—[Monday.]—Japan remained silent today regarding the decision of Germany and Italy to enter a military alliance. The foreign office spokesman declined to discuss the matter. Although newspapers announced the agreement between the axis partners, no comments appeared. The foreign office spokesman refused to disclose whether Japan had been invited to join. The public displayed little interest. It is understood the cabinet will meet again today to discuss the European situation.

2 Girls Drown When Boat Upsets in Lake Centralia

Centralia, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—Geneva Beneventi, 13 years old, and Jennie Lenzini, 14 years old, cousins, drowned in Lake Centralia today when a small motorboat overturned twenty feet from shore. Dominick Lenzini, father of Jennie; Helen Beneventi, sister of Geneva, and Howard Morris, 24 years old, who also were in the boat, were rescued. Keaton Graves, 13 years old, was drowned yesterday in a similar accident in the city reservoir at Salem.

IRENE'S REFUGE WARNED TO QUIT SEIZING DOGS

Evanston Maps New Law; Glencoe Plans Probe.

Evanston and Glencoe city officials vowed yesterday they are well able to take care of any stray dogs in the two villages without the help of Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin or other outsiders.

Crittenden C. Jarvis, city attorney of Evanston, said he was drafting an ordinance to stop the practice of picking up stray dogs and taking them out of Evanston without first notifying the police. He said he was acting on complaints that truck drivers for Mrs. McLaughlin's animal refuge, Orphans of the Storm, have been conducting dog hunts in Evanston and other north shore villages.

Arrest Boss of Shelter.

On Saturday, Samuel Curran, superintendent of the refuge was arrested on a charge of larceny in connection with the seizure of a dog. Mrs. Agnes M. Larsen, 838 Judson avenue, Evanston, charged that one of Mrs. McLaughlin's truck drivers seized her pedigreed Sunnybank collie on the street about March 1. The dog she said was taken to the refuge near Deerfield, and later sold.

Curran denied his drivers have been conducting dog hunts. He said the drivers had orders not to pick up dogs that wore identification tags, but to take only those that looked like stray animals. Curran, who was released on bond is scheduled to appear Friday in the Evanston Municipal court.

Village Has Own Warden.

"Evanston has a dog warden and a dog pound for stray animals" Attorney Jarvis said, "owners with licensed dogs have property rights in their pets and are entitled to protection from the city.

"It's an outrage for outsiders to come into the village, seize expensive dogs, and then whisk them away." He added that the proposed ordinance banning such a practice would provide a maximum fine of $200 for each violation.

George Young, village manager of Glencoe, said he had received complaints from dog owners that their pets had been seized.

Orders Police Investigation.

"Our best method of attacking the self-appointed dogcatcher, who may have been active in Glencoe since we have been missing some expensive dogs, is to look back into our statute books for ordinances dealing with those picking up stray stock," said Young. "At one time the problem of handling those who picked up lost calves or lambs and hurried them to the butcher for selling was covered by ordinance.

"We may have to put some of the old laws into enforcement if the practice reported in Evanston is found to exist in Glencoe. I shall ask our chief of police to investigate and see if any of our lost pets have been taken to the Orphans of the Storm."

REP. DIES TO ADDRESS BIG FLAG DAY RALLY IN CHICAGO JUNE 11

Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of a congressional committee investigating subversive activities, yesterday accepted an invitation to speak in Chicago June 11 at a Flag day celebration in Soldiers' field.

Rep. Martin Dies.

Dies stopped here for several hours yesterday before continuing his journey from San Francisco to Washington.

He was persuaded to make the talk by John V. Clinnin, president of the Nonsectarian League for Americanism, and William F. Clark, dean of the De Paul university law school and vice president of the league. They told Dies 100,000 persons of all faiths, nationalities, and races are expected to participate in the demonstration of tolerance.

Dies said committee investigators are busy in all parts of the country. Hearings will be resumed during the summer, with one to be held in Chicago, he said. Better financed than last year, the committee will continue to give the public the facts about subversive groups regardless of political repercussions, he said. New Dealers attempted to kill the quiz, he charged.

1,700,000 FLEE CHINESE CAPITAL TO ESCAPE BOMBS

Fires Set by Jap Planes Now Under Control.

CHUNGKING, May 7.—(AP)—Refugees streamed from this desolated provisional capital of China today as Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek pushed a drive to move its entire civilian population.

Fires set by repeated Japanese air raids last Thursday and Friday have been brought under control but the inhabitants are in dread of new air attacks which the Japanese have threatened "until the Chinese government is smashed."

[Informed sources in Hongkong said on Saturday Chiang was preparing quickly to transfer the Chinese seat of government to Chengtu, Szechwan province capital, 175 miles northwest of Chungking. The Japanese advance inland drove the Chinese government first from its capital at Nanking to a temporary capital at Hankow and then farther up the Yangtze river to Chungking.]

60 Americans Remaining.

Only a few foreigners, soldiers and coolies were in the streets of Chungking today. It was estimated that the total population was about 300,000—remnants of almost 2,000,000 three days ago.

Among those remaining were sixty Americans, most of whom had moved either to the south bank of the Yangtze or to the outskirts of the city. In their temporary homes across the river they watched endless lines of refugees move by with all the household belongings they could carry.

After the wave of air bombardments, it was disclosed, Chiang appropriated 1,000,000 Chinese dollars [about $160,000] for relief and removal of refugees and another 700,000 Chinese dollars [about $112,000] to build fire lanes.

Nine Chinese newspapers, whose offices all were bombed, combined staffs to issue a page joint edition at Chiang's orders. Laborers carried machinery from the damaged newspaper plants to a factory on the outskirts.

Chiang Flies to Chengtu.

SHANGHAI, May 7.—(AP)—Domei [Japanese] news agency reported Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek flew from Chungking to Chengtu today to discuss with his military leaders the possibility of shifting his capital there. Domei said British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr accompanied Chiang to "continue discussions of the international political situation."

Chinese reports received here, meanwhile, said hard-fighting Kwangsi province troops fought their way into Anking, capital of Anhwei province in East Central China yesterday, but later withdrew to outskirts of the city.

Ambassador Returning.

HONGKONG, May 7.—(AP)—Maj. J. M. McHugh of the United States marines, assistant naval attaché at Chungking, today discounted reports that Generalissimo Chiang planned to move his provisional capital to Chengtu.

Maj. McHugh is en route to Shanghai to meet American Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson who is returning to his Chungking post from a furlough at home. Maj. McHugh said he and Ambassador Johnson would return to Chungking by way of Indo-China. He said the American embassy there was "carrying on business as usual and expects to continue to do so."

MONGOL TROOPS FIRE ON MANCHUKUANS; 3 OF ATTACKERS KILLED

TOKIO, May 7.—(AP)—Domei [Japanese] news agency dispatches from Harbin, Manchukuo, reported tonight that fifty soldiers from Outer Mongolia armed with five light machine guns had fired on a patrol of six Manchukuan policemen and sixteen guards on the frontier about six miles west of Lake Bailu in northwest Manchukuo. Domei said the Mongol force was repulsed and suffered at least three killed. It said there were no Manchukuan casualties.

ROYAL TRAVELERS DON LIFE BELTS FOR DRILL AT SEA

Attend Church Services Aboard Liner.

ABOARD THE EMPRESS OF AUSTRALIA, May 7.—(AP)—King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain donned life preservers hurriedly and responded like every one else aboard to life boat drill sirens today on the first full day out on their historic voyage to North America.

The sirens sounded just after their majesties had attended divine services conducted by Capt. A. R. Meikle this morning in the Empress of Australia's main dining room.

The royal couple and their suite put on the life preservers and moved quickly to their appointed places on the promenade deck for inspection by the ship's officers.

Pray for King.

The lessons were read at the divine services by Purser D. F. Armour. Prayers included that of the British navy asking God to "preserve us from the dangers of the sea and from the violence of the enemy that we may be safeguarded unto our most gracious sovereign, lord and king, George VI., and his dominions and security for such as pass on the seas upon their lawful occasions."

The services were concluded with the singing of the national anthem.

Cover 282 Miles in Day.

The gleaming white liner plowed through a moderate sea in bright sunshine with a stiff breeze blowing. The ship covered 282 miles during the first day's run. King George wore a blue lounge suit with a white pin stripe and the queen was dressed in a salmon pink costume with brown fur and gray suede shoes.

They spent the afternoon quietly reading and resting. In mid-afternoon the vessel passed the inbound French liner Normandie with which radio greetings were exchanged.

WINDSOR TO BROADCAST

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 7.—Fears that the duke of Windsor's broadcast to the United States tomorrow from Verdun, France, might take the shine off the trip of King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth were expressed in London tonight.

He was criticized on the grounds that his talk, which was expected to be an appeal to reason in the solution of world problems, is untimely and that the king should have the first say to America. The broadcast is scheduled for 10 p. m. [4 p. m. Chicago time].

The Beaverbrook press, which last week urged Prime Minister Chamberlain to recall the Windsors from exile mainly for its effect on American opinion, now complains that the duke's decision to broadcast is regrettable.

Press Complains.

The Daily Express for Monday, states that the "moment is unhappily chosen," and adds:

"The king is on his way to America. Any word spoken to the United States at present should come from him. It would have been better for the duke to wait. It is reported the duke will make an appeal for peace in his broadcast. Such an appeal would have been uttered more appropriately after the king's peace mission to the dominion had been brought to a conclusion."

The British Broadcasting corporation was waiting for orders from Downing street before announcing whether the duke's message would be broadcast in England.

Flying Time Cut

Air routes linking Chicago and Honolulu. Time for the distance has been reduced five hours.

A five hour reduction in flying time between Chicago and Honolulu, Hawaii, was announced yesterday by the United Air Lines. R. F. Ahrens, regional trafic manager for the company, said passengers, mail, and express may now leave Chicago at 2:05 a. m. and arrive in Honolulu 24 hours 25 minutes later.

LOUDER WELCOME IS PLANNED FOR KING AND QUEEN

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—The government has decided, after one try, that a little more "oomph" is needed in receptions for visiting rulers.

For one thing, there should be more bands and less delay when King George and Queen Elizabeth come to town next month, the experts let it be known.

The state department and the army did some analyzing—with the aid of the observations made by a general perched in the dome of the capitol and a study of motion picture reels—of the reception given last week to President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua.

Generally, they concluded that the reception and the parade ran off well, but that there were a few minor defects. One was that the diplomatic corps was kept waiting too long at the White House before the Presidential party appeared from the station. Another was that there was not enough band music along the line of the parade. George T. Summerlin, chief of protocol of the state department, will discuss the reception with President Roosevelt this week.

would renew efforts to promote a peaceful settlement of the German-Polish dispute.

It was pointed out that whereas until now Mussolini had a friendly right to counsel Hitler on his policy toward Poland, under the new treaty he will have a formal and legal basis for intervening.

Although it was conceded generally in political circles that a solution of the German-Polish dispute acceptable to both nations might be difficult, it was not regarded as impossible.

No Immediate Attack.

Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, gave an assurance that Hitler had no intention of "precipitating events" in the Free City of Danzig. Gayda often has inside information.

He said that Germany, though desiring that the Danzig problem be decided by the people of the Free City, would wait for Poland to resume negotiations and was hopeful that Britain and France would "recognize their error and responsibility in time and leave Poland free to lead her own life."

[This apparently was a reference to the British-French pledge to aid Poland in event of an attack on her independence.]

"But this German moderation," Gayda warned, "must not be interpreted as encouragement of undue intransigence."

The editor said, however, that the Danzig problem was in an acute stage. He blamed Anglo-French action in getting Poland into their front for the situation.

Duce Influences Hitler.

Mussolini was understood to have brought strong pressure on Hitler for moderation toward Poland.

Today's communique was issued after the conversations between the two foreign ministers reached a rather abrupt conclusion.

After yesterday's talks, which lasted nearly three hours, it was announced that they would have two more discussions today, but instead they had only a brief meeting to decide on the terms of the communique.

Ciano and Von Ribbentrop conversed in English in preference to French, the other language they have in common.

Ciano spent more than an hour alone at the prefecture when he was reported to have conferred by telephone with Mussolini concerning the phrasing of the communique.

20 Minutes Late for Lunch.

The two foreign ministers then met for lunch at Palazzo Sormano, a famous old palace recently purchased by the city of Milan.

Von Ribbentrop arrived 20 minutes late for the luncheon. Ciano paced back and forth meanwhile and his face broke into a smile when the German's car sped through the palace gates.

The communique was issued after the luncheon, when the foreign ministers returned to their hotels, and just before they departed for a civic reception at Palazzo Marino.

It was assumed that the terms of the pact had been decided upon during conferences which Mussolini and Ciano had with Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Hitler's chief aid, during the last month and during staff talks which still are in progress between Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, chief of staff of the German army, and Gen. Alberto Pariani, chief of staff of the Italian army and undersecretary of war.

FRANCE EXPELS THIRD ITALIAN CONSULAR AGENT AND 3 OTHERS

TOULON, France, May 7.—(AP)—The French government today ordered the expulsion of a third Italian consular agent in four days. Three other Italian residents here were asked to leave.

Following up the order issued yesterday against Gino d'Antrea, Italian consular agent at Sainte Maxime, officials today asked Laurent Canevero, consular agent at Toulon, to leave France immediately. Carlo Vatteroni, attaché of the Italian consulate here, was expelled Thursday.

A man named Peipino and a couple whose names were not given in the writ also were ordered expelled today for anti-French propaganda. The Italian couple were said to have disappeared May 5.

HITLER AND DUCE AGREE TO DELAY MILITARY ACTION

Germany and Russia Move to End Enmity.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 7.—While Great Britain and France and non-Fascist powers are vainly trying to unite on a common policy, the dictators of Germany and Italy staged a new demonstration of unity today. They had their foreign ministers perfect what was described as a new political and military alliance in Milan, Italy.

The pact does not alter the political setup in Europe. Nevertheless, the reason why the dictators felt it necessary to proclaim formally the military alliance, which has existed practically for years, is interesting.

Well informed circles said Reichsfuehrer Hitler has decided to postpone action against Poland—temporarily—and Premier Mussolini has decided to postpone action in northern Africa for the time being.

Look Forward to a Lull.

Both dictators agreed that celebrations and discussions about the new Italian-German pact will make their people forget temporarily the expansion plans they have been discussing for weeks. Consequently, influential circles in Berlin are inclined to believe that Europe can look forward to a lull similar to the lull between the first Czecho-Slovak-German crisis in May of last year and the September crisis.

[War was averted last May when Germany's campaign to take the Sudetenland away from Czecho-Slovakia was in full swing. War again loomed last autumn. In September Great Britain, France, Italy, and Germany decided that Czecho-Slovakia must cede the Sudetenland to Germany in the interest of peace.]

"The time is not ripe for action in the Polish matter," Hitler told his lieutenants yesterday and today.

Personal representatives whom Hitler sent to Poland convinced him that the frenzy of patriotism which has gripped Poland makes it difficult for the Warsaw government to come to terms with the Germans regarding the return of the Free City of Danzig to the reich and the establishment of a German right of way across the Polish corridor from Germany to East Prussia.

Hitler Bides His Time.

"A military action would cost more lives than is justified," Nazi leaders maintained.

Therefore, Hitler ordered his aids to bide their time. How long that will be depends on the developments in Poland and the military preparations of Britain and France.

Meanwhile military circles are playing an important part in efforts for a gradual rapprochement between Germany and soviet Russia. It is alleged that despite the tragic fate in 1937 of Marshal Michael N. Tukhachevsky, who was accused of being pro-German, many soviet army officers favor coöperation with Germany. [Tukhachevsky was reported to have been shot.]

A. T. Merekalov, soviet ambassador to Berlin, recently said the day was not far away when Russia and Germany would be friends because they needed each other.

Friendly to Dictators.

A day after he was received by Ernst von Weizsaecker, German secretary of state, Merekalov traveled to Moscow. He has not returned. His colleague in Rome, Boris E. Stein, is known for his friendly attitude toward the dictator powers. He was in Milan while Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop were concluding the Italian-German pact.

Economic circles of Germany said that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, who is a sound believer in coöperating with Russia, continues to urge the reëstablishment of relations with Russia which the Nazis formally denounced as World's Enemy No. 1.

[An Associated Press dispatch said diplomatic observers in Berlin agreed that if Germany and Russia could come to an understanding on how to treat Poland—a state that lies between them—a way to ironing out their own differences would be made much easier. These observers said Nazi abuse of bolshevism was being soft pedaled and that Britain, France, and the United States would soon be at the receiving end of the angry shafts previously directed at Russia.]

Nazis declared that army circles were also largely responsible for Hitler's decision to work out a military pact with Italy now.

Army Men Tour Italy.

Germany army officers recently toured Italy upon the invitation of Mussolini's government. They inspected armaments factories and military units, including hospitals. A number of them, after visiting hospitals filled with victims of the Spanish civil war, declared:

"It would be good for the peace of the world if war mongers were given a chance to see the human wrecks who were returned to their native soil after going through gas attacks in Spain. No man who has seen them would ever dare recommend war."

The Germans complained that wherever they went unaccompanied by their Fascist friends the population showed it had no sympathy with the Germans.

"A military alliance should make it clearer to the population that it must be friendly with the Germans," Nazis said.

Hitler has summoned Nazi provincial governors and officials to tour the western fortifications facing France with him late in May. Rumors persist that work on the fortifications is progressing more slowly than expected because of labor and technical difficulties as well as trouble with farmers. The farmers are said to be furious at being deprived of their land for a nominal payment from which all their back taxes and loans granted by the Republican régime are being deducted. Hitler's inspection tour is expected to last about a week.

ENGLAND FEARS STALIN SEEKS TO ISOLATE RUSSIA

London Envoy to Call for Showdown Today.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 7.—The British government is still worried over the implications of the ousting of Maxim Litvinov as soviet Russia's commissar for foreign affairs. Sir William Seeds, British ambassador to Moscow, will confer tomorrow for the first time with Vyacheslav Molotov, the new soviet foreign commissar, on British counter proposals to Moscow's plan for a three power alliance against aggression.

Sir William Seeds.

No official explanation of Dictator Josef Stalin's move reached London since Litvinov was sacked last week. Alarm was expressed here that after more than three weeks' delay on the part of the British government in replying to the Russian proposals, Stalin has decided to head towards a policy of isolation.

For this reason Seeds has been instructed at the outset of his conversations with Molotov to make inquiries to clarify the position before proceeding further with the British-soviet negotiations.

A summary of the British reply was transmitted to Moscow from London this week-end by Jean Maisky, the soviet ambassador. British official quarters maintained secrecy about the suggestions submitted to Moscow. However diplomatic circles said that they reject most of the major points of the original soviet plan calling for a hard, fast military alliance between Britain, France, and Russia.

War Pact Blow to Britain.

LONDON, May 7.—(AP)—Announcement that Italy and Germany had decided to become allies in a formal military pact was interpreted here tonight as a blow against the British-French front.

This crushed hopes in some quarters of the British government of driving a wedge between the Rome-Berlin axis partners by weaning Italy away from her friendship with Germany.

Of reports that Germany might demand a plebiscite in her dispute with Poland over the Free City of Danzig, it was said in informed British quarters that it would be up to Poland to decide what stand to take.

May Urge Conciliation.

Britain, following her pledge to aid Poland in defense of any threat against Polish independence, has insisted that it is for Poland alone to decide when her independence is threatened. But since Danzig is more than 90 per cent German, some observers expressed belief that Britain might urge Poland to try to conciliate in the event that hostilities threatened over the issue.

Announcement of the increasing Italian-German solidarity, made at Milan, Italy, was seen also as an indication that Reichsfuehrer Hitler would have Premier Mussolini's full backing in his demands on Poland for return of Danzig to Germany.

Britain's Labor party observed May day today with a parade to Hyde park in which massed thousands shouted such slogans as "Chamberlain [prime minister] must go!" "No conscription!" "Unite with soviet Russia and save peace!"

FRANCE FEARS NEW PRESSURE ON POLAND TO GIVE UP DANZIG

PARIS, May 7.—(AP)—French diplomatic sources today expressed fear that conversion of the Rome-Berlin axis into a formal military alliance meant dangerous renewal of pressure on Poland to force acceptance of German demands concerning Danzig and Pomorze [Polish corridor].

French observers held, however, that the step had no effect on the basic European lineup between the rival Rome-Berlin and London-Paris blocs.

Diplomatic observers said the pact probably was designed to stampede Poland into giving in to Adolf Hitler's demands for the return of Danzig to Germany and sovereign rights over a strip of the Polish corridor connecting East Prussia with Germany proper.

MOSCOW SILENT ON GOSSIP NAZIS ACT TO END FEUD

Reconciliation Regarded as Inevitable.

MOSCOW, May 7.—(AP)—Reports of a trend toward better relations between Germany and soviet Russia neither were denied nor confirmed here tonight.

Great Britain's reply to the soviet union's nonaggression pact proposal arrived. Sir William Seeds, British ambassador to Moscow, was expected to communicate it to Premier and Foreign Affairs Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov tomorrow.

Observers of soviet diplomacy did not exclude the possibility of a Nazi maneuver to pull Russia away from the British-French bloc following last week's resignation of Maxim Litvinov as commissar of foreign affairs.

Diplomatic Trick Seen.

Neither, however, did they exclude the possibility of a Russian maneuver to swing France and Britain into line with Moscow's views by letting them believe that Reichsfuehrer Hitler had made an attractive approach to Moscow.

[Britain's note to Moscow was said in informed London quarters to have refused to go as far as a Russian plan for a triple military alliance among Britain, France, and Russia and to have offered the soviet union a plan of guarantees by all three powers to the smaller states of central and southern Europe.]

But those who have been watching for signs of a rapprochement between Berlin and Moscow are inclined to regard a reconciliation as inevitable sooner or later.

They emphasized that scarcely seven weeks after Dictator Josef Stalin denounced foreign efforts to poison the atmosphere between the two nations, Litvinov, who was poison in the eyes of Nazis, suddenly relinquished the foreign affairs portfolio.

May Cast Strategy Aside.

An article appearing in the magazine, Party Construction, the day after Litvinov's retirement, argued that Hitler's frequent denunciations of Moscow in past years merely were part of a plan to coax Britain into making concessions to Germany as a bulwark against communism.

Now that Hitler has gained all he could expect from that strategy, it continued, he may be expected to toss it aside. The article pointed out that in his recent reichstag speech Hitler did not utter one word against Moscow.

The soviet foreign office was open to callers again today but the only outward sign of a change was a blank space on the wall where a portrait of Litvinov used to hang. The whereabouts of the former foreign commissar was not revealed.

HEAR DANZIG SENATE WILL PROCLAIM CITY A PART OF GERMANY

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, May 7.—(AP)—The impression grew in Nazi quarters tonight that the Danzig senate soon would declare the Free City a part of Germany and invite German authorities in neighboring East Prussia to take over the government. Thus Danzigers, ostensibly without Adolf Hitler having moved a finger, would dispose of their own future in accordance with the principle of self-determination.

This, however, would not solve the question of a Nazi link between East Prussia and Germany proper for Polish armed forces are in Pomorze [the Polish corridor] which separates the fatherland from its province.

The question asked everywhere was: Would the Poles fire on Danzig should the senate declare the Free City a part of Germany? The more confident Nazis answered no, while some Poles said yes. Nazis said that for Poland to open fire on this former German Baltic port, which Hitler has demanded returned, would put the stigma of military aggression upon Warsaw.

Marshall Field & Company
presents here each day observations intended to be of value to those it seeks to serve.

"THE NIGHT SHALL BE FILLED—"

By CALEB

OF the transcendent art of Music, Margaret Fuller once expressively wrote in her journal: "I felt raised above all care, all pain, all fear, and every taint of vulgarity was washed out of the world."

Few statements in literature could be truer or lovelier—yet it has remained for Heinrich Heine to render into words, as nearly as mortal can, melody's innermost meaning: "The very existence of music is wonderful, I might even say miraculous. Its domain is between thought and phenomena. Like a twilight mediator, it hovers between spirit and matter, related to both, yet differing from each. It is spirit, but it is spirit subject to the measurement of time. It is matter, but it is matter that can dispense with space." . . .

Many such or kindred concepts will assuredly linger in the minds of delighted audiences attendant, during the week of May 13th-20th, on the four exceptional concerts scheduled for the current North Shore Music Festival. Including a Saturday afternoon performance of Negro spirituals and art songs, by a Children's Chorus of 1,000 voices, with Marian Anderson as guest soloist—Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings of the same week will also feature the Festival Chorus of 500 adult voices, directed by Frederick Stock and Hans Lange.

Lovers of the "great" in music find their reward indicated in the works which will be rendered on those evenings successively. Bach's tremendous and inspiring Passion According to St. Matthew occupies stellar place — the Festival Chorus being assisted by Rosa Tentoni, Frederick Jagel and Friedrich Schorr, of the Metropolitan Opera; Elizabeth Wysor, concert artist; and Mark Love, of the Chicago City Opera. Wolf-Ferrari's choral masterpiece, The New Life, appears next, with Rosa Tentoni and Igor Gorin; and the concluding performance, devoted to Beethoven's immortal Ninth Symphony, features Kirsten Flagstad.

Popularization of the finest music for the greatest numbers has seldom received greater impetus than that given it in this twenty-eighth season of the Music Festival, by Northwestern University's conversion of a portion of Dyche Stadium into a $20,000, 6,500-seat indoor choral theater—perfectly heated, lighted, ventilated, decorated in flower-garden motifs, and acoustically ideal for its purpose. . . . Here, for thousands of comers from near and far, will be happily consummated those conspiracies of voice and instrument whereby—to quote Longfellow's famous simile—The night shall be filled with music, and the cares that infest the day shall fold their tents, like the Arabs, and as silently steal away.

GERMAN-ITALIAN ALLIANCE FAILS TO BOTHER POLES

See 2 Courses of Action Open to Hitler.

WARSAW, May 7.—(AP)—Foreign diplomatic circles expressed the view here today that Poland's attitude would not be swayed by the announcemen of a new German-Italian military alliance.

No official comment was available concerning the pact, and the Polish foreign office was expected to make a careful study of the situation, considering the prevailing tension between Warsaw and Berlin, before making any statement.

Basically the attitude of Poland toward Germany showed no sign of weakening.

Two Methods of Action.

Informed observers here saw Germany now debating between two possible methods of action.

One would be a policy of delay with an attempt to isolate Poland and an effort to subject her to a period of intense nervous strain as well as the continued expense of maintaining her big defense machine in a state of constant readiness.

The other method would involve direct action against the Free City of Danzig and Pomorze [Polish corridor].

There was a feeling in Polish circles that should Reichsfuehrer Hitler resort to the latter action he would move in a manner calculated to force the Poles to take over Danzig, and put them in the position of being aggressors.

Tension between the two countries found expression in many minor ways. Polish travelers arriving from Germany reported trains were being delayed by what the Poles consider an unjustifiably detailed German customs examination.

Ordered to Undress.

In many cases, it was stated, Poles were ordered to undress completely so their clothes might be examined with the explanation that money smuggling was being guarded against.

In Bydgoszcz, the largest town in the Polish corridor, Polish authorities closed a German theater to avoid any possibility of reprisals by the Polish public for a reported assault on Polish actors last Sunday in German Silesia.

Robotnik, organ of the Socialist party, carried reports that since mid-March all gold and foreign exchange in Danzig had been removed to Germany in expectation that German rule would be established in the Free City.

Give Machine Guns to Army.

There were continued demonstrations of patriotism. Trade unions controlled by the national unity movement, the government party, presented seven heavy machine guns to the army in a Warsaw outdoor gathering.

Col. Zygmuht, chief of staff of the unity government, in a short address said Poland was ready and would under no circumstances yield any of her territory or rights.

HUNGARY SEIZES 52 NAZI CHIEFS IN SERIES OF RAIDS

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 7.—(AP)—A series of police raids today brought the arrest of fifty-two Nazi leaders, members of the illegal Hungarist party. Detectives raided private apartments, restaurants, and clubs to nab followers of Ferenc Szalasi, Nazi leader who was sentenced to a three year jail term last July. Police declared that after the Hungarist movement was ordered disbanded last Feb. 24—the same day Hungary signed the anti-communist pact with Germany, Italy, and Japan—the Nazis started secret activities.

American Flyer Killed in Plane Crash in China

CHUNGKING, China, May 7.—(AP)—Chinese military authorities today announced the death of George Weigle of Alabama, a flyer with the Chinese air force, in a crash last Thursday. Weigle was the only foreigner remaining with the air force after the international volunteer bombing squadron was disbanded. He was unmarried.

[According to Shanghai reports, Weigle was employed by the North American Aircraft company. They said he formerly flew for the Republicans in the Spanish civil war, but arrived in China six months ago as a test pilot.]

INVESTIGATION BEGUN IN SOUTH SIDE BLAZE FATAL TO AGED MAN

Authorities yesterday were investigating a fire that swept a frame dwelling at 3110 East 133d street shortly before 2 a. m. and caused the death of Andrew Mroczek, 80 years old. He was trapped in his bedroom by flames.

William Sass.

His wife, Hedwig, 77; their daughter, Mrs. Julia Drossel, 50, of Whiting, Ind., and her son Everett, 10, were saved by Policeman William Sass of the East Side station and Frank Culich, 27, of 13236 Burley avenue, a passerby. The two climbed to a second floor window of the burning house and carried the women and boy out. They were aided by wedding guests in the home of a neighbor, Jacob Ginalski, 13259 Houston avenue.

A lumber yard fire threatened the business district in Aurora yesterday. The fire occurred in the yards of the Alexander Lumber company, 101 South River street and caused damage estimated at $100,000. Firemen from Geneva, Elgin, and Naperville helped the Aurora fire fighters.

URGES GERMAN CATHOLIC YOUTH STUDY RELIGION

BERLIN, May 7.—(AP)—The Catholic bishop of Berlin, Count Konrad von Preysing, in a letter read at services today, urged Catholic parents to send their children to special classes for religious instruction being organized by the church.

Establishment of such classes for a few hours each week was necessary, the bishop said, because of a ban on religious instruction in state schools.

The letter protested the suppression of the Catholic youth movement and observed that a Catholic now virtually is without an opportunity to receive religious education.

POPE PIUS AGAIN URGES WORLD TO PRAY FOR PEACE

Plea Made in Speech to Eucharistic Congress.

VATICAN CITY, May 7.—(AP)—Pope Pius XII, renewed his appeal today for "that peace so ardently desired by uneasy humanity" as announcement of a German-Italian military alliance caused fear of new tension in Europe.

The pope's plea was made in a speech delivered in French and broadcast from Vatican City to the Eucharistic congress at Algiers, Algeria.

It followed a week of conferences between papal nuncios and government officials in various European capitals, reputedly in carrying out the pontiff's endeavor to find means of assuring the continent against an outbreak of war.

Vatican Remains Silent.

His message today, however, gave no indication of the nature of any diplomatic moves by the Vatican and the Vatican itself remained silent on the subject.

The pope again exhorted the world to pray for "the peace promised to men of good will, peace in souls troubled by the appeals and seductions of false doctrines, peace among nations trembling in unceasing anxiety."

He mentioned by inference the tension in the Mediterranean. He said that "neither the churning waves of the sea nor the fracas of armaments which shake the shores" had been able to disturb the "mystic elan" of those attending the congress.

Recalls Plea for Prayers.

He called its communicants to remember his appeal April 20 for a crusade of prayer for peace during the month of May, especially by children whom he called "those privileged ones of the Savior."

The pope evoked the glories of the old Christian civilization of North Africa which he said had been reborn after centuries of nonexistence.

He addressed those attending the conference as "very dear sons of the noble French nation"—Algeria is a French colony—and told them that the prayers for peace this month "unite us intimately with you."

NINE MILITARY PRISONERS FLEE FORT HARRISON

Indianapolis, Ind., May 7.—(AP)—Nine military prisoners sawed their way out of the guardhouse at Fort Benjamin Harrison near here tonight, but two of them were recaptured by state police a short time after the break. The other forty prisoners made no effort to escape. The men were all privates and were serving time in the guard house for a variety of violations of regulations. They sawed two steel bars out of a rear window of the brick building and then crawled through a small hole made by bending back the broken bars. A radio playing at full volume drowned out the noise of sawing the bars. They dropped twelve feet to the ground and slipped away in the darkness.

U. S. TO ASK NAZI POLICE WHY THEY SEIZED COUPLE

BERLIN, May 7.—(AP)—American embassy officials will attempt tomorrow to obtain from the GSP [secret police] an official explanation of the seizure a week ago of Richard Rosson, photographer for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and Mrs. Rosson. At the embassy it was said no change in the status of the Rossons had been reported.

Rosson was taken into custody allegedly for photographing military objects and it was understood he and his wife were being held at Graz, Austria.

TURKEY LINES UP BEHIND RUSSIAN BLACK SEA PACT

Decides on Strong Ties; Views Identical.

ANKARA, Turkey, May 7.—(AP)—A communique marking the first official statement following Turkish-Russian talks declared today the determination of soviet Russia and Turkey "to strengthen further the bonds linking them."

The views of the two governments, it said, are "in full identity."

Vladimir Potemkin, the soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs, who had been conducting negotiations with Turkish leaders, left for Moscow Friday.

Newspaper Suspended.

The newspaper Akcham, which yesterday published a report that British-Turkish negotiations on security "have succeeded," was ordered by the government to suspend publication for an indefinite period.

The paper reported Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu had explained to the Republican People's party that the basis of the agreement was mutual assistance for security in the Mediterranean.

It was said the agreement would be published soon in Turkey and Great Britain.

Confer in Bulgaria.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 7.—(AP)—Vladimir Potemkin, soviet Russia's vice commissar of foreign affairs, and King Boris III. of Bulgaria, held a lengthy conference today at which it was believed they discussed a projected Black sea pact. The soviet diplomat, who came here from Ankara conferences with Turkish officials, also talked with Premier George Kiosseivanov of Bulgaria.

The Black sea pact advocated by Russia, so far as is known here, calls for a nonaggression agreement among the soviet union, Rumania, Turkey, and Bulgaria.

It has been reported that Moscow was interested in having Rumania yield to Bulgarian demands for the return of the Dobruja area, which Bulgaria lost after the world war, to make Sofia more receptive to such a plan. Potemkin was scheduled to leave tonight for Bucharest.

Several thousand Chicagoans of Polish descent braved the thundershowers yesterday to celebrate the 148th anniversary of the adoption of the Polish constitution. There was a parade and patriotic ceremonies in Humboldt park. Dr. Waclaw Gawronski, Polish consul, was cheered when he declared that Poland would stand steadfast in rejecting Hitler's demands for the Free City of Danzig and a German right of way through the Polish corridor.

Seeing is Believing!

HERE'S AN INTERESTING CIGARETTE COMPARISON... See how it's made by Al Conklin of Dartmouth

SMOKERS all over the country are learning what A. R. Conklin (right) is showing a group of Dartmouth men. It's a striking way to compare cigarettes by simply watching them burn! Al is testing the leading brands to find the one that burns slowest! Which brand won? C-A-M-E-L... by a wide margin! The reason? Costlier tobaccos, expertly blended in a cigarette that burns slowly, completely—smokes cooler, of course!

Recently, a group of scientists ran this interesting laboratory test on a bigger scale. 16 of the largest-selling cigarette brands were rated impartially. CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME FOR THE OTHER BRANDS. (Camels were remarkably consistent.) IN THE SAME TEST, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME FOR ALL THE OTHER BRANDS.

Camel is the cigarette of costlier tobaccos...a cooler, milder, better-tasting smoke...every cigarette...every pack!

"Look how slowly the Camel burns compared to the other brands," Albert Conklin points out to the bunch. Everyone agrees that Camels win hands down. "No wonder Camels smoke so cool and mild," Al adds. "And that must have a lot to do with why Camels have such an appealing taste!"

Smoking is Believing!

WHEN you've enjoyed the thrill of a mellow, ripe-tasting Camel, you'll know that NOTHING can take the place of costlier tobaccos! What a wonderful pleasure it is to get set with a cigarette that is really mild—a matchless blend, made to give you all the pleasure in smoking.

Camels have more tobacco by weight than the average of the 15 other brands tested. Besides, Camels burn slower than any of those other brands. And by burning 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands, Camels give you the equivalent of 5 extra smokes per pack!

Camels give you even more for your money when you count in Camel's finer, more expensive tobaccos. Buy shrewdly! Buy Camels...America's first choice for a luxury smoke every smoker can afford!

Camel's slower burning (compared to the average time of the 15 other brands tested) gives you the equivalent of 5 extra smokes per pack! You economize while enjoying smoking pleasure at its best!

CHECKOFF SLAVERY.

In their efforts to placate John L. Lewis and reopen the mines he has tied up pending negotiation of a new wage contract Appalachian coal operators offered to extend the checkoff system to nonunion as well as to union miners and to recognize Mr. Lewis' United Mine Workers as exclusive bargaining agents for all their employés.

These are substantial concessions to Mr. Lewis' drive to consolidate his tyranny over the coal workers of the country and to block miners from recourse to the Wagner act as a means of selecting the rival A. F. of L. coal union as their bargaining representative. The imposition of a union checkoff on nonmembers of that union —who, indeed, in the coal field will usually be members of the rival union—is a vicious novelty.

Trade unions have two devices for consolidating and maintaining their control of employment. One is the closed shop, under which the employer agrees to employ none but union members. The other is the checkoff, under which the employer takes union dues and assessments out of the employé's pay envelope and turns them over to the union.

The closed shop is the more widely used device. It is subject to abuse, but it has been demonstrated in a great many cases that it can be operated without abuse. It may be noted that the closed shop, in most instances, does not require a checkoff. If the union member does not pay his dues he loses his standing in the union and on the union's complaint the employer will dismiss him.

This procedure is effective, from the standpoint of the union, so long as nonpayment of dues is confined to a minority of malcontents or financial irresponsibles. It can be seen readily, however, that it will break down if a substantial proportion, and particularly a majority of the members of a union, become dissatisfied with the administration of the union and refuse to pay dues to its officers. The employer will then be placed in the position of declaring a lockout against a substantial portion of his working force to coerce obedience to the union officials.

Unions, democratic in principle, are frequently dictatorial in practice. Dictatorship may be enforced with the gun, as it has been enforced in some Chicago unions, or it may be enforced by usurpation of power and perversion of the union constitution, as Mr. Lewis has enforced his dictatorship over the coal miners for years.

In such circumstances refusal to pay dues is the last resort of the union member. His position is analogous to that of the taxpayer resisting an unjust tax and in particular that of the taxpayer who is prevented from getting relief at the polls by ballot thievery.

The checkoff robs him of this last line of defense against exploitation by his own union officials. His dues are taken from him so long as he works. His only recourse is to seek work elsewhere, which in the mine fields and elsewhere is frequently impossible, or to resort to violence.

Mr. Lewis' own conduct in recent years is the most flagrant example of the abuses that make the checkoff a form of slavery. Members of the mine union have been milked and milked dry, not to strengthen their own organization but to advance the personal ambitions of the union dictator. The half million dollar purchase of the Roosevelt administration, the millions poured into other C. I. O. unions, all came out of the pockets of the miners through the checkoff.

The strike that Mr. Lewis is now conducting is not designed to better the condition of the mine union members. The miners are striking to tighten their own chains, chief of which is the checkoff.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR REFUGEES.

Conditions in Europe being what they are, a good many citizens of the United States have been and will be asked to post bond and insure that some America bound refugee will not become a public charge. With this in mind it seems well to call attention to a recent decision by Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone in Milwaukee that this thing of sponsoring alien entrance is not an empty or idle gesture.

In the case before the Milwaukee court, two citizens had given bond for $500 to insure that a widow about to arrive from Russia with her five children would not become a burden on the public for their support.

Shortly after the family arrived in America the widow married and moved to Chicago where, in the course of the next few years, her husband drew something like $1,300 relief for the support of himself and his newly acquired brood.

Judge Stone held that the statute of limitations did not run on the sponsorship and that the bond must be made good although it failed by more than half to compensate for the cost they had imposed on the public purse.

The decision will meet general approval except possibly from those whose urge to do good cannot find a sufficient outlet among the poor and needy already here. It is not hardening one's heart to the sufferings of those in other lands but it is the simplest safeguard against overwhelming the country with those who lack the means and ability to provide for themselves over here.

Judge Stone's decision simply means don't go surety for the future of any aliens in this country unless you are prepared to make good for them.

REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT IN ILLINOIS.

The Chicago council has endorsed a bill for state reapportionment. Ald. Frank Keenan suggests that the council would do well to show its sincerity by redistricting the city into wards which would provide more equitable representation. He called attention to the fact that one alderman may represent 76,000 people and another 30,000.

Population shifts will throw the representative system out of balance and from time to time poltical fairness requires a readjustment of political divisions. The representatives of the division seldom like to make changes which would introduce uncertainties and make it more difficult for them to carry elections. Frequently the disparities are deliberately contrived to favor the men who make them.

Representative government has been passing through one of its depressed eras. It has been abolished in a large part of continental Europe. That in itself was a testimonal to its value to free people. Dictatorships and representative government are antagonistic. Although a legislative body may submit at times to executive will, the dictator knows he is not safe if representatives of the people can be freely elected and derive their place and authority from the people themselves. Every executive who wants a free hand will send the legislators home, if he can, and if he can't keep them there he will try to take away as much legislative power as he can assume. The complete dictatorship substitutes administrative orders for legislative enactments.

Inasmuch as representative government has been in stormy weather everywhere, even here in the United States, it should be regarded as of great importance, particularly by the men who hold place and have authority under this system, to keep it politically on the square. In Illinois the legislature since 1901 has refused to obey the constitutional mandate requiring the reapportionment of the state after every census. The downstate members of the general assembly will not obey the constitutional command because if they did so they would increase the representation of Cook county and reduce their own. They want the seats to which they are not entitled, thereby depriving the metropolitan section of representation.

Such tricks do the representative system no good and some of the people of the state a real injury. In a measure Illinois has what Americans are supposed to resent and properly fear. It is taxation without representation.

THE FLORIDA CANAL.

The Florida ship canal, started by order of President Roosevelt and abandoned by order of congress, is again before the senate. Nobody knows how much this project will cost if it is completed; none of the estimates run much less than 150 million and in all probability 300 million dollars comes nearer the mark. Senator Vandenberg took the trouble to inquire of shipping companies whether they desired the canal or would use it if it were built and they answered no to both questions. The excuse now offered for the project is that it is needed for national defense.

A few years ago the responsible officers of the navy said the canal would be of negligible strategic value. The army took the same view. Mr. Roosevelt wants the canal built and he is commander in chief of the army and navy. The present spokesmen for the armed services say the canal would be useful in time of war, but their second guess must be discounted. The passionate desire of the commander in chief to build the canal no doubt has influenced the opinions of his subordinates. They can salve their consciences by telling themselves that at any rate the canal will not add materially to the problem of defending our country from an enemy.

Two hundred million dollars is big money even in the light of present day budgets. Spent, for example, on anti-aircraft batteries and equipment, it would go far to protect strategic centers in this country or in any area in which our army might be engaged. It would buy a lot of the weapons and ammunition we haven't on hand. It would suffice to store adequate supplies of the raw materials of war which we do not produce in this country.

The only present excuse for the Florida canal is the military excuse. It can safely be said that of all the ways in which a couple of hundred million dollars of borrowed money might be spent in promoting American preparation for war, the Florida canal is by long odds the worst.

Editorial of the Day

THEY SHOULD BE EXPOSED.

[Detroit Free Press.]

A depositor in the First National Bank-Detroit has filed a suit in a District of Columbia court which may remove the cloak of secrecy that has covered certain phases of the receivership of this bank since 1933.

The suit seeks to bring the controler of the currency and the receiver into court and make them give a complete accounting of all disbursements in connection with liquidation proceedings.

The complaint alleges, among other things, that more than $1,150,000 belonging to depositors and stockholders has been used to meet attorneys' fees and legal expenses since the bank was closed.

At least three years ago a high official in Washington, who is also an experienced banker, stated that the First National, if placed in the hands of a competent liquidating committee, could pay 100 per cent to depositors and 20 per cent to stockholders.

The then controler of the currency came to Detroit, selected a liquidating committee and hired office room for it, with a view to taking the bank out of the hands of the receiver.

Why were these plans suddenly killed by officials in Washington who had more power than the controler of the currency?

Was it because they wanted to milk the depositors and stockholders of the First National in order to obtain exorbitant fees for attorneys to whom they were under political obligations?

Among those familiar with the situation here there has never been the slightest criticism of the way in which Receiver B. C. Schram has performed his duties.

What has been criticized is the refusal of higherups in Washington to permit the affairs of the First National to be settled promptly in the interest of the depositors and stockholders.

The current suit will do a public service if it reveals who got the pickings in Washington and why.

PETER PAN OF COLLEGE INN.

"Why do they call it the College Inn?" asked the twitching young Jitterbug to the calm old Loophound.

We recalled a bright, brown eyed, eager lad who was our cub reporter when we edited a campus weekly. That was at the University of Chicago in the youngest year of this century. This freshman's name was Eugene Beifeld—Gene for short—and he was bouncing with college spirit.

After a couple of years the family destiny summoned him. His father Joseph had acquired the old Sherman House and Gene was to become the manager of its new basement restaurant.

"I'm going to call it the College Inn," he told us, "and decorate it with the coats of arms and colors of the big universities. How does it sound?"

We gave this boyish idea our blessing. Thus, out of the austere Midway, came the first breath of the "collegiate" movement around the cash register which was to develop, in the years to come, into a national mania. The restaurant that Gene Beifeld [later Byfield] named went over like a cataract, and within a few years there were minor and imitative College Inns all over the country.

Gene was a good namer. He also, we believe, named White City, another family property. That title, too, had numerous imitators during the great amusement park boom.

Eugene Byfield, elder brother of Ernest, who succeeded to his domain, died on Feb. 24, 1930, after an accident in a polo game. On his birthdays, the band at the College Inn ought to play, as overture, "Wave the Flag for Old Chicago." That song had not been written when he was a student, but he would approve it as an expression of the tradition which he founded. This happens to be the oldest unbroken tradition of cabaret life in the United States.

SONG FOR ST. MICHAEL.

(May 8 is the feast day commemorating St. Michael's appearance on earth in 525 A. D., in Apulia, Italy, on the summit of Monte Gargano.)

Sancte Michael Archangele,
Defende nos in proelio!

Michael Archangel, defend us in battle,
Lead us and guide us, show us the right;
Thou who cast Lucifer down from the citadel;
Thou who art Godlike—so named, so in might.
Disclose us the strategy, the power, the majesty,
The strength which we lack, the men who shall lead;
The snares, the pitfalls, the wiles of the devil,
Temptations and lures, and the perils to heed.
Show us the way, brother, the way to eternity;
Show us the way, brother, we will be led
To gain the victory, the goal of all sorrow,
With the sword of the Sword of God at our head.

Daniel Jazz.

We Can't Keep Billy Patterson Down.

As the call for the identity of the man who struck Billy Patterson in the Line demands an answer, here are the facts:

It was Adolf Hitler.

And that isn't all. Shortly afterward he set fire to Chicago and then blamed it on Mrs. O'Leary's lovely cow. Keeping on eastward he then kidnaped Charley Ross. Not satisfied yet, this fiend in human form wrote "Beautiful Snow" and caused it to be published in six different magazines, carrying the names of six different authors, thereby precipitating a controversy which has distracted the literary world ever since. While en route back to Germany he caused the sinking of the Titanic, after which he negotiated the treaty of Versailles, which he is now using as a pretext for confiscating the Monroe Doctrine and dragging America into the next world war.

DAYS THAT ARE NO MORE.

How sweet the memory of the city streets,
Of gale-swept corners where one's hat may soar;
How sweet the memory of those lofty spires,
The traffic's maddening rush and deafening roar—
When one is far away!

How sweet the memory of the open road,
Of lanes that wander through the thickets deep;
How sweet the memory of the quiet lakes
Where pines like sentinels their vigils keep—
When one is far away!

How sweet the memory of those absent ones
Whose footsteps, through those happy crowded years,
Slipped softly past us toward the setting sun,
And left us standing on the brink in tears!

May Day Midnight, Country Style.

That midnight when you saw the Northern Lights in Chicago [5-3-'39], I looked out into my back yard and saw a cherry tree in full bloom standing in streaming moonlight. A fountain, foaming white, sending its wind tossed spray against a dark blue sky! Beyond, the tall, budding linden tossed the silver ball of the moon in its long arms, and lightly let it fall.

My tired mind dipped in a cool pool of moonlight which lay at the foot of the small magnolia oak, and rose refreshed and ready for sleep.

TOO SHORT THE HOURS.

Blue carpets of the violets and phlox,
White curtains of the dogwood trees in bloom—
My lifted heart has no more any room
For sadness when Spring's angel stands the knocks.

I find the hours to fill my happy ears
With bird songs and my soul with May's perfume
Too short, though I should live a thousand years.

LEUCOPLAKIA WITHIN THE MOUTH.

We have heard about star gazers and those who are entranced by the mellow effulgence of moonlight. For all practical purposes, however, most of us would do well to take a squint at the tongue now and then to ascertain something of the state of this irrepressible organ. In association with the lips, the cheeks, and the gums it provides the machinery for mastication and the swallowing of food. It is also extremely important in enunciation and the formation of words.

We can well understand that the oral cavity [mouth] is subjected to a goodly number of insults—unintentional on the whole—but nevertheless actual and real. Edibles that are too hot or too cold, too peppery or too coarse may bring on inflammation or destruction of the covering cells. If certain of these abuses continue the mucous layer may become greatly thickened and appear as though splashes of silver paint had been allowed to adhere to the tissues. If the condition is left alone, the colorless blood cells [leucocytes] will collect gradually near these blotches and some atrophy will ensue, with partial wearing away of the blemishes. After a while these will be replaced by smooth, red, unhealthy looking surfaces and, thereafter, folds, fissures, and cracks will form. The tongue—or, in fact, any region within the mouth—may be involved. As the disorder becomes chronic all phases may be seen, particularly the firm whitish plaques.

The exact cause of these outbreaks is not known, other than the common sense viewpoint that some steady, persistent irritation must be responsible. Irregular or decaying teeth or badly fitting plates may be blamed; or the use of dishes highly seasoned with spices, tobasco sauce, etc. On the other hand some individuals who have broken every rule of hygiene will present perfectly clean mouths.

In the beginning the malady is without symptoms, and months or even years may elapse before any real discomfort will be observed. In fact, the first evidence of trouble may be the occurrence of the characteristic spots which may be mistaken for a coated tongue. Even at this stage no distress is experienced. Later, however, prickly sensations may be complained of whenever the food consumed is too hot or is generously mixed with condiments. About this same time signs of roughness or harshness may be noted, especially if the patient fails to close the lips during sleep. From a few weeks to a few months later the tongue becomes less pliable and its movements are not quite so responsive. However, only in well advanced cases will there be any difficulty with pronunciation.

Smoker's patches—so-called—are just a form of leucoplakia. As we can well understand, a constant stream of hot vapor from a pipe, cigar or cigarette holder, striking the same place, may be followed eventually by the development of the typical lesion. This forms, as a rule, to one side and always on the upper portion. Oval in shape, the extent may vary from a half to three-quarters of an inch in length and a quarter of an inch in width. After a while this, too, may pass through the same changes that have been described above, becoming firmer and less resilient. Other than a periodical slight burning the patient is symptom-free. Should the parts become more tender, moderation in the use of the weed may ameliorate or banish this manifestation. It is probably the best example we have of leucoplakia resulting from a known injury.

With suspected victims the tongue must first be dried so as to permit careful study. A mere coating [fur] will disappear after this procedure. A true hardening, however, will remain and will become even more prominent in contrast with the surrounding structures. Syphilis must be ruled out and a blood test will be helpful in identifying this latter infection.

The essential thing is to eliminate the affected sites as speedily as possible because occasionally they will undergo malignant degeneration. If the condition is discovered early every effort must be made to prevent unnecessary irritation. If improvement does not take place after the establishment of good hygiene then surgery may be employed with the excision of the areas. Occasionally X-ray or radium has been used effectively.

IT'S USUALLY BEST.

N. D. writes: Must all premature babies be placed in an incubator?

REPLY.

Desirable but not essential. An ordinary crib in a well ventilated room is entirely adequate if the proper temperature can be maintained. To sustain an even heat electric pads or a small electrically heated blanket may be used. Humidity is even more important than temperature, as dry air—with its resulting loss of fluids—adds to the difficulty of breathing. Occasionally oxygen gas is of great value.

FIRST AID.

D. O. writes: What first aid is suggested when a housewife splashes ammonia water into the eyes?

REPLY.

Wash the eyes promptly with clear water to which a small amount of lemon juice or vinegar has been added. Then a skilled physician should be consulted.

FINAL PAPERS NECESSARY.

Davenport, Ia., May 3.—[Friend of the People.]—I was born in this country and in April, 1912, was married to a man born in Scotland, who did not get his citizenship papers before Sept. 22, 1922. Am I a citizen, and if not, what steps must I take to become one? W. T. B.

If the inquirer was married to an alien between March 2, 1907, and Sept. 22, 1922, she lost her citizenship by such marriage, under the laws then in effect. She did not regain her citizenship by his naturalization after Sept. 21, 1922, as under an act of congress approved Sept. 22, 1922, the citizenship of married women on and after the latter date is independent of that of their husbands. However, she may, if she desires, apply for final papers without a declaration of intention [first paper].

There is enclosed herewith an application Form A-2214 which the inquirer may submit to this office, together with two photographs as described on page 4 thereof. No money order is required with this application in her case.

PROFIT FROM REFUGEES.

Chicago, May 2.—The ideas of some people regarding the refugee problem are sadly in need of enlightenment.

Refugees of the high type coming from central Europe do not displace Americans from jobs but make more jobs for Americans.

I know of a German family in America for hardly a year who have given work to over 350 Americans formerly unemployed. They are manufacturing a novelty previously imported. The factory is in central Ohio.

Sir Samuel Hoare, British cabinet minister, declared last November that the 11,000 refugees admitted to England since the rise of Nazi Germany have made 15,000 new jobs for Englishmen. Many of these have been in a new toy industry. Thrusting humanitarianism aside, in five to ten years we native born Americans will be glad for sound economic reasons that we admitted refugees and our only regret will be that we did not take more.

ADOPTION DIFFICULTIES.

Chicago, May 2.—Like "An Adopted Mother" who wrote in the Voice of the People today, I tried to adopt a baby for about five years. Getting nowhere I decided to take an older child. Since orphanages are run on a sectarian basis I naturally applied to several of my own nationality and was told not one child was available.

Gradually I came to the conclusion that orphanages do not want to give out their charges. Just about this time an article in the Readers Digest called "Prisoners of Charity" brought out this same idea, the writer having tried in vain in orphanages throughout the country to secure a child. The conclusion he drew was that orphanages and other institutions do not want to give their charges to homes, as then there would be no need for any personnel at the orphanages. I came to the same conclusion myself. F. L. Jonas.

"THE PRESS AT ITS BEST."

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—I am not in the habit of writing to newspapers and don't recall that I ever did it before.

Your editorials and the Orr cartoons on the folly and danger of America's meddling with European problems are my idea of the American press at its best. In my opinion America has never been confronted with a more important issue and the press has never had a greater duty. Your paper is among those that have been performing that duty and your performance has been nothing short of splendid. If we avoid getting into another European war it will be because of such services.

Roger E. Chapin.

OUR AMERICAN MAJORITY.

Champaign, Ill., May 6.—The photo in your issue of May 2, showing a masked autoist in Miami with a noose dangling on the side of his car to intimidate Negro voters, shows that we who live in glass houses should not attempt to tell Hitler what his policies should be toward Jews and other minorities, when the Negro minority here in many sections of the United States is denied its equality in the courts, election booths, restaurants, theaters, railroads, etc.

HIGH MILK PRICES.

Griffith, Ind., May 3.—Your paper of today gave a true picture of the reason for the high price of milk in Chicago. But the heading was misleading: "Farm and Labor Groups Blamed for High Milk."

How can you blame the farm end of it when they furnish the farms, cows, machinery and taxes on all this and do more work to produce a quart of milk by a whole lot than does the route salesman, and then do not get as much as the one that delivers it to the consumer?

Sam B. Woods.

MILK DRIVERS' WAGES.

Chicago, May 3.—Today's Tribune quotes Theodore G. Montague, president of the Borden Dairy company, as stating that organized labor is responsible for the high retail price of milk in Chicago, where the average union milk wagon driver's salary is $52.82 a week.

However, Mr. Montague does not mention that the average work week for a milkman is seventy to eighty hours; that the loss to the average route on sales tax is $2 a week, paid by the driver; that the average milkman pays on accounts which go bad on his books; that the milkman has no job security—when he gets old and not able to climb the stairs he is fired; that quotas on butter, eggs, and cheese have to be kept up or out you go, and that in order to sell these products the milkman is forced to dig into his weekly pay check to the tune of $3 or $4 a week, and that, were it not for the sick and death benefits paid by the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, poverty would be the reward when Borden fired you.

I note, however, Mr. Montague forgot to mention that he earned over $50,000 in salary for last year, and that the Borden company made close to $7,000,000 profit! Incidentals, it is true, nevertheless they point to the main reason why distribution costs are high.

JOB SEEKING AND PERSONALITY.

Chicago, May 2.—I answered a blind ad and was told to report for an interview. The interviewer disliked me from the start; I could sense that. He made no effort to question me, but made it clear from the start that I hadn't clicked. I finally asked him pointblank why I failed to impress him. He assured me it wasn't my fault, perhaps I could handle the work, but that he was interested in only one type of girl and I was not the type.

Not only must the unemployed girl contend with religious and racial prejudice, she also has to worry about what type of girl the employer requires. Shades of henna! Do I have to dye my hair to get a job?

Let me add that I am always neatly dressed and not unattractive. L. A.

JUST ANOTHER EPISODE.

Chicago, May 4.—On that Polish corridor question now receiving much attention in the press, I would say, there is really nothing for us Americans to get hysterical about, it is merely history repeating itself. I am quoting from Encyclopedia Americana:

"The Polish King Boleslaw [992-1025] made conquests in Pomerania, Bohemia, and Silesia. In 1025 to 1034 the Danes, Russians, and Hungarians made considerable conquests in Poland, but these were recovered in part by Boleslaw II. Casimir I. [the Great, 1333-'70] was forced to make cessions of territory to the Teutonic knights and to Bohemia. The united Lithuanians and Polish defeated the Teutonic knights in 1410 and Poland acquired West Prussia, thus obtaining an outlet to the Baltic sea. In 1569 Lithuania was incorporated into Poland, also Livonia and Wallachia were conquered. Poland extended from the Baltic to within 50 miles of the Black sea. In 1772 Russia, Prussia, and Austria and again in 1793 Russia and Prussia divided Poland."

Due to Germany's defeat of Russia in the world war and the aid of Woodrow Wilson, Poland is now a nation again. When we look back 25 years from now this corridor question will be just another episode in the history of the Indian wars of Europe.

WOMEN AND WAR.

Chicago, May 1.—The women of this country should organize to protest against our being mixed up in any European war. They have a tremendous power, forming more than half of the voting power of the nation.

Women don't want war. Certainly the older ones do not, and especially those who have husbands or sons in the service. Some of the younger women may be dazzled by bright buttons and the ballyhoo of war, but the more mature ones know better.

Senator Borah is right. Neutrality does not mean naming the aggressor nor selling ammunition to any of the warring nations. It means keeping out of it entirely and tending strictly to our own business.

We were left holding the bag after the last war. That lesson should have taught us to keep out of the next.

Mary Onahan Gallery.

"IF WE DON'T HAVE A WAR."

Chicago, May 4.—Does it not seem strange that the king of England can leave the war area and travel 4,000 miles to a foreign country while our own ruler is afraid to travel to Warm Springs for fear of war? J. B. Ebert.

HIGH SCHOOL LUNCHES.

Chicago, May 3.—The ideal lunch pictured in The Tribune on May 3 cost 40 cents. I wonder how many Chicago high school students can afford an ideal lunch every day. Bewildered Student.

FRANCO ORDERS SPANISH DRIVE ON PROFITEERING

Trade Unions Join in Move to Cut Prices.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BURGOS, Spain, May 7.—Relentless war on profiteering was ordered tonight by the government trade union organization. Every workman and every member of the organization was ordered to join in the fight and to report any offenders and any activity tending to prevent the lowering of prices.

Minister of Trade Gonzalez Bueno.

Fines totaling 569,000 pesetas, or more than $50,000, were imposed today on seven merchants and one trading association for violations of the rules on prices and disposal of goods.

Few Rises Justified.

Tonight's order, issued by Pedro Gonzalez Bueno, minister of the trade union organization, said that "prices must not only not rise but be lowered as much as possible until they are the same as those in force before the national movement."

"Raises in salaries cannot be nullified by greater rises in prices," he said. "Every unjustified rise in prices must be inexorably prosecuted."

The order calls on all union members to report constantly on "all measures adopted, acts, denunciations and any difficulties or resistance they encounter," and declares that "our Caudillo [our chief, Gen. Francisco Franco] orders it."

It is part of the Falangist [Fascist] program that while private property rights are recognized as desirable, profits must be limited to a fair return and accumulation of vast fortunes be prevented.

Demobilization Begins.

Demobilization of Spain's fighting men begins tomorrow, under orders issued today. The three classes of 1927, 1928, and 1929, roughly 210,000 men, will be discharged by May 15. This is only about one-fifth of the men under arms and still leaves a powerful army available. The men affected were the last three classes called to the colors at the end of last year to wind up the war. They range in age from 30 to 32.

A system of card indexing was provided to permit rapid and efficient remobilization in case of need.

Other troops are expected to be discharged as soon as Madrid's big victory parade is over. That is believed scheduled for May 15, though the date has not been officially announced.

Moors Return to Morocco.

As the men who fought the war return to civil life their places will be taken in large part by younger classes called for military service. The strength of each class in Spain is estimated roughly at 70,000 men. Today's demobilization order still leaves 12 classes under arms besides the foreign legion and volunteers. Most of the Moorish forces already have returned to Morocco, it is understood.

Another phase of the demobilization—the return of war industries to a peace time basis and demilitarization of the personnel—already is well under way.

A bitter attack on President Roosevelt as a war monger was published in Domingo, a weekly publication of San Sebastian.

"We applaud without reserve the masterful buffeting the reich chancellor [Adolf Hitler] was able to administer to the hypocritical champion of universal pacificism, President Roosevelt, whom all men of sound mind consider the foremost propagandist and spreader of alarmist reports over the globe," the paper said.

URGES 50 MILLIONS FOR AIR DEFENSE OF NEW ENGLAND STATES

Worcester, Mass., May 7.—(AP)—Declaring New England would be the first point of attack by a European power, Brig. Gen. Edmund L. Daley today declared this section should demand $50,000,000 for adequate air protection in the event of war.

Gen. Daley, who will take command of the new United States army department in the Caribbean next month, spoke before a Hibernian society communion breakfast.

"The Atlantic," he said, "has shrunk to a mere lake. We are a defensive nation. Our military objective is to keep war out of America."

GOATS IN BRITISH AIR RAID SHELTER SURVIVE BOMBING

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 7.—The home office tonight announced that goats had been used to test the effectiveness of the government's steel back yard shelters against air raids and that they survived the explosion of a bomb near by.

No details of the experiments, which were conducted by Sir Joseph Barcroft, Cambridge scientist, were made public. Sir Joseph, who has frequently conducted dangerous scientific experiments on himself, said: "People can have great confidence in this type of shelter."

Local governments were instructed to go ahead with concrete shelters for low income families for whom steel shelters are unsuitable. The latter, which are cheaper, cannot be used if the back yard is paved or if pipes prevent sinking the shelter in the ground.

FIND SONS DON'T FOLLOW FATHERS IN PROFESSIONS

Does a physician's son naturally become a doctor, the son of an engineer a bridge builder, the daughter of a nurse a Florence Nightingale?

At the annual open house of Armour Institute of Technology Wednesday, Dr. William C. Krathwohl, director of the educational tests laboratory, will exhibit graphs to disprove this theory.

The purpose of the tests is to determine the vocational interest of incoming students and to follow and guide them through their academic training. It has been found, Dr. Krathwohl said, that some occupations can be distinguished by certain likes and dislikes, thus helping the young student to find his proper field.

HAVANA, Cuba, May 7.—The house of representatives today approved a bill extending the period of registration of political parties which desire to participate in the constituent assembly elections set for Aug. 30. Their petitions for registration were denied last week by the superior electoral tribunal. The senate already has approved the legislation.

Alkalizing plus cleansing

You take Eno in water. It sparkles. It tastes good. Moreover, it helps neutralize excess stomach acids... an important extra benefit.

JOBS WITH HITLER LURING GERMANS BACK FROM U. S.

Homes Are All Ready for Skilled Workers.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—Thousands of German-Americans, many of them weary of continued unemployment in this country and others recruited by industrialists in Germany, are flocking back to their homeland.

Dr. Friedhelm Draeger, German consul-general in New York, and representatives of steamship lines disclosed today that German emigration is registering a big increase. Steamship company officials said the number of Germans going to Germany was larger than was expected seasonally.

630 on Two Liners.

The ocean liner Bremen of the North German Lloyd lines sailed last week with 525 persons in third class and 105 in tourist class. The Hamburg of the Hamburg-American lines, a smaller vessel, carried 631 passengers. Both sailings represented an increase in business.

According to an explanation given by some sources, Adolf Hitler's industrialists are recruiting mechanics and other skilled workers to help expand production in armament and other lines in preparation for war.

Homes Ready in Germany.

Individuals in Milwaukee and St. Louis have admitted they were in charge of signing skilled workmen. The men leaving America sell their homes and other property. Furnished homes have been prepared for them in Germany.

The recruiting agents appeal to German-Americans who prefer steady employment in Germany to uncertain employment or Roosevelt relief in the United States.

Dr. Draeger said he knew of no recruiting and that the reason for the emigration was simply this: Jobs in Germany, none here.

"People go where there are jobs," he added. "They come into the consulate and ask for work. We look over their records and if they are decent people we let them return to Germany."

U. S. Citizens Included.

Most of the emigrants have been German citizens but among them was a large number of naturalized Americans, according to Dr. Draeger. Some of those leaving had been in the United States for ten or fifteen years.

"The emigrants are drawn about equally from the middle west and the eastern seaboard," Dr. Draeger said. "There are few from beyond the Mississippi."

Two hundred skilled workmen and their families recently left Milwaukee to go to Germany. Many are said to have departed from Chicago.

DULL MILLINERY TRADE LAID TO FICKLE WOMEN

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—Woman's insistence upon something new and different in hats was held partially accountable today for depressed conditions in the millinery business.

The woman's bureau of the labor department, seeking an answer to why the industry lagged behind while other businesses showed gains in 1935 and 1936, concluded that manufacturers' fears that a new mode might not take hold had resulted in hand-to-mouth buying of materials and use of hand methods and light machinery.

Accordingly, the bureau suggested that millinery manufacturers attempt to assess style trends far enough in advance to permit economic planning of each season's output. The bureau found that profits were as low as 3 cents a hat on some cheaper grades.

ARMY WILL ADD 20 BATTERIES OF ARTILLERY

Boosts Firing Power 20 Per Cent.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—As a part of the program to strengthen the nation's defenses twenty batteries of artillery will be added to the army, independent of the defense program in the next few months.

Four have been added and sixteen are being organized at various posts throughout the country. The move has been accomplished by shifts of units and transfers of funds.

At the war department it was reported that the program will increase the firing power of the field artillery by 20 per cent. The firing power will be stepped up again when funds flow from the expansion program.

Men Obtained by Transfer.

Officers and men for the new units are being obtained by transfer from service units of artillery regiments and brigades. The quartermaster corps will take over some of the supply duties formerly performed by artillery units.

All of the new batteries now being assembled are motorized. Their guns are being taken from reserve stocks as are trucks and other equipment. Funds from the annual appropriation bill will supply whatever is needed to fuse the batteries into units.

Ten Will Have 75's.

Ten of the batteries being organized will have modernized French 75's. Five will be armed with 155 m. m. howitzers and one will be a "sound and flash" battery to locate enemy artillery. The four already organized are horse drawn 75 m. m. batteries.

The plan, which was conceived by Gen. Malin Craig, army chief of staff, increased the number of field artillery batteries in the army from 103 to 123.

Among the units being transferred from paper to active status is Battery D of the 5th field artillery, at Madison Barracks, N. Y., which was established in 1776 and was officially designated the Alexander Hamilton battery after its founder, until after the civil war. It was put on a paper status in the Hoover administration.

FIND VITAMIN B1 CURES FRIGHT DISEASE IN DOG

Vitamin B1 [thiamin hydrochloride] will cure fright disease, or "running fits," which annually is fatal to more than 100,000 dogs. This discovery was announced yesterday in the magazine Veterinary Medicine.

Dr. John W. Patton of East Lansing, Mich., reported that experiments with more than sixty dogs were identical in every case. The dogs were fed a diet lacking vitamin B1 was soon developed the disease, but were cured within 48 hours by injections of the vitamin. A change in the diet to milk and meat, rich in the vitamin, often stopped such attacks, Dr. Patton wrote.

11 WILL FACE TRIAL TODAY ON WPA GRAFT CHARGES IN KOKOMO

Indianapolis, Ind., May 7.—[Special.]—Eleven men, former city officials of Kokomo and former WPA officials in Kokomo and Howard county, will go on trial in federal court here tomorrow on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government by diversion of WPA materials and labor to private uses.

The eleven were indicted last March after investigations by federal and Howard county grand juries. Charges which caused the investigations were made during the Kokomo political campaign last fall. In the November election voters swept the Democratic régime out of offices.

The defendants are Olin R. Holt, former mayor of Kokomo; Carl J. Broo, Holt's law partner and former city attorney; George H. Morrow, former city engineer; George Mix, formerly Morrow's assistant; William H. Good, former city clerk; Lester E. Ratcliff, former WPA supervisor in Howard and Tipton counties; Lincoln F. Record and James A. Harmon, former WPA project supervisors; Charles W. Harley, who succeeded Ratcliff; Thomas C. Heady, president of the Sumption, Heady, Hunt company, and Joseph Tarkington, former employé of the state unemployment relief commission.

WOMAN RIDER HURT AS HORSE FALLS ON HER

Mrs. Dorothy Ingersoll, 38 years old, 556 Greenwood avenue, Kenilworth, was injured seriously yesterday when she was thrown by her horse while riding on a bridle path near Harms road, in the forest preserve near Glenview. The horse reared, threw Mrs. Ingersoll, and then fell on her. She suffered rib and pelvic fractures. Her husband is H. B. Ingersoll, a sales representative.

ARMY SURGEONS TO STUDY PILOTS' MENTAL STRAIN

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—The maximum mental strain which a wartime aviator can undergo without cracking will be studied at the international congress of military medicine and pharmacy beginning here tomorrow.

More than 120 army and navy medical officers from thirty countries will attend. Military surgeons, outlining some of the problems to be considered by the congress, said today's military airplanes are approaching speeds of from 350 to 400 miles an hour. If a pilot takes even a quarter of a minute to think a situation over he is nearly two miles from the point where he started to think. Too, the wartime pilot can make only one mistake.

Research done by Capt. Harry G. Armstrong of the army medical corps in a low pressure air tank at Wright field, Dayton, O., has shown that even the most fearless of airplane pilots become panicky and irresponsible, due to lack of oxygen, when flying at high altitudes.

BOWEN WILL LAY CORNER STONE OF NEW INSTITUTE

A. L. Bowen, state director of public welfare, will place the corner stone of the new Illinois Neuropsychiatric institute at 1853 Polk street tomorrow. The building will be part of the University of Illinois and state public welfare group located in conjunction with the university's colleges of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy. Under the coöperative arrangement the state provides the facilities for research and training work and the university provides supervision and workers.

DIES IN PECATONICA.

Pecatonica, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—Funeral services for Otto Peterson, 78 years old, who died at his home last night, will be held Tuesday. Born in Sweden, he had lived here since 1896. He leaves his widow, two sons, eight grandchildren, and two great grandchildren.

LIBRARIANS ASK FUND TO EXTEND ILLINOIS SERVICE

Springfield, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—A group of librarians will appear before the house appropriations committee Tuesday in support of house bill No. 951, which calls for appropriation of $400,000 to extend library service — particularly into communities which have no library facilities. It is sponsored by Representative James A. Nowlan [R., Toulon].

Miss Helene H. Rogers, executive secretary of the library relief fund, said today that five counties of Illinois have no libraries whatever, and 34 other counties have only one. The five without libraries are Henderson, Calhounr, Effingham, Gallatin, and Hardin. Sangamon country, which includes the state capitol, has only one tax supported library, located here.

Miss Rogers estimated that 2,000,000 persons in Illinois are without library facilities. The requested appropriation would make possible the purchase of about 200,000 books.

MRS. VOGEL, 85, DIES IN ASHTON.

Ashton, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Lillian Vogel, 85 years old. She died Friday afternoon. Born in a log cabin on the Blackhawk trail near Dixon, she had lived in Lee county all her life. She leaves three children and seven grandchildren.

Coral Reefs, Palms, and Bronzed Fishermen of South Sea Islands Inspire Summer Prints

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Blue lagoons, coral reefs, the almost monotonous swish of waves curling over copper gold beaches blazing in the midday sun, strange combines of colors, weird silhouettes of lacy nail-circle fish net, bronzed fisherman standing on a cliff, swaying palm trees, sea shells, deep sea foliage, the shades of volcanic ash—now you have the newest fashion, Polynesian prints.

On delightfully textured rough silks, on fluttery cool sheers, on crisp linens, piqués and cottons, these prints are especially welcome for summer clothes.

Think of fuchsia palm trees swimming in a pearl gray haze and you'll know the loveliest of new evening gowns. See the deep bronze of a sun-tanned native fisher boy as the colored background for sooty black small silhouettes and the olive green of island foliage and you'll appreciate the prints of linen to be used for active and spectator sports clothes.

Feathery plant life floating under the sea is another effective idea for cool linen prints for summer daytime dresses. Sea shells, small or large, make ideal motifs for slim simple tailored models with cloud blue, flower pink, or bud green backgrounds.

There is no clash of color, dramatic as the prints are to the eye. Every single tint or shade blends magically, glowing like the jeweled islands far west in the Pacific. Designs, so old their origin is lost, have been expertly copied from ceremonial robes and tattoo markings, each with a meaning. Flowers, native dishes and utensils, everything from the islands has been used for inspiration.

The most comprehensive collection of such romantic prints ever unpacked . . . suits, dresses, blouses, sports clothes, active or spectator, hats, and the smaller costume accessories as well as bolts of the fascinating prints—is the talk of the town. It's new, it will take you miles away from routine. It's good South sea island magic brought to Chicago.

Children Sing Folk Songs as They Should Be

BY EDWARD BARRY.

National Music week opened with great nasal shouts yesterday afternoon when hundreds of children took over the stage of Orchestra hall for the annual festival of the Civic Music association.

It looked and sounded as if spring, discouraged by the unexpected rain, had simply moved indoors. For one thing, the youngsters were dressed mostly in white and in cheerful colors. For another, their singing was marked by a verve and a freshness which made its often nosey quality endearing rather than repellent.

Directed by Marx Oberndorfer and accompanied by the Civic orchestra, the children sang folk tunes with the artlessness and naïveté which this sort of music requires. There were no "effects" dragged in—no attempts made to dress up these simple, straightforward songs in the unbecoming garments of musical sophistication.

Where do these children come from? Playgrounds, orphanages, schools—even the Juvenile Detention home. The Civic Music association gives musical training to youngsters who for the most part would have no other opportunities.

Besides their folk songs, the children offered a festival cantata made up of various Mozart melodies. Instrumental numbers by the orchestra were played under Clarence Evans' direction.

Things seemed pretty sad to a late comer stalking into the Great Northern yesterday. In the first place the audience was tiny. In the second Izler Solomon and the Illinois Symphony orchestra were busy with Sibelius' melancholy fourth symphony. In the third whispered information revealed the fact that Philip Culkin, scheduled soloist, was ill.

However, spirits picked up after the intermission. There was a performance of excerpts from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Le Coq d'Or," in which Mr. Solomon had many opportunities to parade the subtle instrumental colorings of which the orchestra is capable. Following came a windy, folklike presentation of an Enesco Rumanian rhapsody.

Sonia Sharnova Puts Individual Touch in Songs

BY CECIL SMITH.

In a well planned recital program Sonia Sharnova, an established and valuable member of the contralto division of the Chicago City Opera company, sang a benefit recital in the Studebaker theater yesterday afternoon. The proceeds went to the scholarship fund of Omega chapter, Sigma Alpha Iota musical fraternity.

The opening group consisted of five interestingly contrasted arias from dramatic works by Gluck, Donizetti, Handel, Purcell, and Arne. In the rest of the program were a group of German lieder, four songs in English, and a generous assortment of exotic folk songs from Spain, Slovakia, and the near east.

Perhaps the dominating quality of Mme. Sharnova's singing is her magnificent assurance. Having long since passed out of the stage of worrying about the mere mechanics of singing, she is usually able to employ her voice as she wants to in order to project forcefully her individual conception of each song.

For Mme. Sharnova does possess genuine individuality, and she is not willing to present a song to her audience without making it profoundly her own. At its best, in the German lieder, this personal approach carries with it a deep understanding of the emotional power of the music. At other times it tends to become a superficial, if warm, external projection of her own temperament. But at least her singing is always vital, even though, as in Vaughan Williams' "The Water Mill," her notion of the music may be intellectually wrong.

In the aria from Donizetti's "Anna Bolena" I was surprised to hear so finely routined an artist take liberties in order to make the difficult music more comfortable. And the case of Dido's lament from Purcell's "Dido and Æneas," I wondered where she could have obtained such a garbled version of the score.

Edwin Karhu accompanied admirably, with deft technique and dependable taste.

Theodore Charles Stone, Negro baritone, gave a recital in Curtiss hall. He expects to use the proceeds to help finance a summer's study in Finland with Kosti Vehanen, Marian Anderson's coach and accompanist. In his study I hope he will find a way to increase the resonance of his naturally good voice, which is now a bit dull and woolly. He already possesses a musical senstivity upon which to base his study of song interpretation.

Washington Turns Out in Cutaways to Greet Royalty

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—Capital society trotted back and forth today as visiting dignitaries were entertained at various social functions.

Secretary of State and Mrs. Hull entertained forty-three top ranking guests at a luncheon in honor of President Anastasio Somoza and Señora Somoza of Nicaragua.

The Danish legation party brought the largest turnout of cutaway coats in the capital in a long time. The crown prince and Princess Ingrid shook hands and said "how do you do" with a smile as the guests were presented by Otto Wadsted, Danish minister, and Mme. Wadsted, his dark eyed South American wife.

President and Señora Somoza received friends informally in the afternoon and had a "comida nitima" [intimate dinner] at the legation tonight.

Apron Styled Like a Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISS' APRON.

Here's a crisp looking apron that has all the style of a frock. In fact, it resembles a frock so closely that, instead of being designed only in three sizes, it is made in the same measurements as those of dresses.

All types of cottons are suitable for this apron, and prints are special favorites. The shoulders are wide and the "stay put" kind. The neckline is square and may be trimmed with either rickrack braid or ruffling, more of which finishes the armholes and the hemline. The skirt of this apron is gored for flare.

Style No. 3455 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Clotilde patterns are 10 cents each. Address orders to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

From the note book:

Necessity mothered a fine invention recently for a long nailed girl we know. She has lovely hands and beautiful nails. The latter are a bit on the Fu Manchu side, very long, but she has the kind of hands that can carry them off perfectly. It's a near tragedy for her when one of her precious long nails comes a cropper.

The other day, when a typewriter key did wrong by Nell's index finger, breaking the nail down below the quick, she was stumped—but only for a while. With a manicure scissors she snipped out a piece of adhesive tape the exact size and shape of the nail, pasted it over the wounded one and applied her dark polish as usual. It's a great success—and one you might try next time your favorite long nail gets torn. It holds the nail together until it grows out beyond the tear and keeps it presentable in the meantime.

First, there are beauty treatments. You can arrange for her to get them at her favorite salon either by opening an account or buying a gift certificate. There are always perfumes. Florals are the perennial favorite; her tastes and your pocketbook can be your guide. Carnation, camellia, lilac, and violet are extremely popular.

Then there are beauty kits. Sneak around until you find out the name of preparations she likes best. After that it's easy. Almost every line has assembled preparations in bags or boxes at various prices. Maybe she fancies lovely soaps—and doesn't often have them. They're easy to find. Colognes are all over the place, some with perfume, some without. And there are special gift packages everywhere you look in the cosmetic sections. If she prefers practical things, don't forget manicure cases; these, too, are in a wide range of prices.

Brunette or a Blonde, You Must Sparkle

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

They were discussing the different appeals of brunettes and blondes, when a man present suggested that a brunette hasn't much to offer compared with a blonde unless she has "sparkle." "Then," he added, "she has the entire world of blondes licked!"

That's one man's opinion. Maybe the opinion of more, although it does seem to us that a number of phlegmatic brunettes of sterling qualities have worked their way into hearts and homes, at that.

However, it is an idea to think about.

"A blonde," our friend said, "is a sparkling creature naturally, unless she is a complete washout, so that in competition the brunette has to offer a different type of sparkle, one peculiarly her own. And when a brunette sparkles, she is a gorgeous thing!"

Sparkling eyes and sparkling teeth were cited as the special qualities of the dark haired one. And gleaming hair. When you get those qualities in a dark one, you have something lovely to look at, other things being equal.

The brunette's better wearing quality was discussed at this impromptu meeting. We wonder if that conclusion were better fitted to an earlier day when blondes did not have the wide recourse to health and beauty preserving aids common to all today. Anyway, it's a discussion theme for you and you.

You can run over your own list of friends and acquaintances and determine whether blonde or brunette on in years is the better preserved. Our judgment is that brunette hair grays more becomingly; that older blonde women take to bleaches so often unbecoming and more ageing than the original color, because they find that graying blonde hair is a depressing thing to them. The brunette so often comes through with gorgeous iron-gray locks that give her a distinction hard to compete with.

In this hair feature there probably lies the argument that brunettes wear better in the long run. Too, their skin, speaking generally, is of an oily texture better fitted to survive the test of time. In youth this oily quality may be the bane of existence, but it is that oil in the skin that preserves it, just the same.

However, to return to our thesis that sparkle is a rich quality, we would suggest that brunettes need have no corner on it. We know blonde women who have that ingrained sparkle that sees them through a long and successful career.

It's Kindness to Child to Clear Baby Talk Before School Days

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Sunday we covered two points on the subject of baby talk. One, that it is best for us not to talk baby talk to the baby or very little child. The other, that even though we don't use baby talk, that doesn't mean that we must keep after the baby or even the little child who is learning to talk and constantly correct him and ask him to repeat certain words correctly. It is not wise though to encourage the so-called baby talk or to allow it to prolong itself needlessly.

There comes a time when it is a kindness to a child to correct his pronunciation. When tactless grown people "smile audibly" at what seems to them an amusing twist in a word, or when other children pick up a mispronunciation and repeat it or jeer at it is the time when a child needs help. And sometimes before that, to spare him chagrin.

When a child begins to go to school his speech should be pretty well cleared of babyisms. You must be careful not to nag, not to pick him up constantly on every word. Simply use good sense and tact.

There's one thing worth repeating. If you want your child to speak well look to your own speech. Listen to it. Rapid, indistinct speech or careless or blurred pronunciations can scarcely be expected to be transmuted by the imitator-baby into clear, pure English.

Tell Betrothals of Two Girls at Winnetka Teas

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO engagements of interest were announced at teas yesterday afternoon in Winnetka. Mrs. Stewart Johnson entertained in the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles H. ReQua, to announce that her daughter, Miss Catherine ReQua Johnson, will marry Alexander Chartis Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen C. Bell of Lake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Shuman received in their Indian Hill road home to announce that their daughter, Margery, and John J. P. Odell II., son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Odell, also of Winnetka, are to be married.

Mrs. and Miss Johnson make their home with Mrs. ReQua just across Sheridan road from the late Mr. Johnson's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs Ayres Boal. Miss Johnson, whose father was an American diplomatic official, was born in Caracas, Venezuela, when he was chargé d'affaires there. Later the Johnsons lived in Washington, Berlin, and Egypt.

Miss Johnson Educated at Briarcliff College.

After Mr. Johnson's death his widow and daughter returned to Winnetka and Miss Johnson continued her education at the North Shore Country Day school, at Miss Porter's in Farmington, Conn., where she spent three years, and at Briarcliff Junior college. Mrs. Johnson and the Cyrus G. Hills planned a ball for last Dec. 22 at the Casino to introduce to society Miss Johnson and Miss Molly Hill, but Miss Johnson was not able to attend the party because of the death a few days earlier of her grandfather, Mr. ReQua.

Mr. Bell prepared at the Hill school for Princeton university, from which he was graduated in 1934. He was a member of the Triangle and Charter clubs. He is a member of the faculty of the Bell school in Lake Forest, of which his father is the headmaster.

Mr. Bell and his pretty fiancée, who always is called Tita, will be married in the fall, probably in October. They will live in Lake Forest. Miss Johnson's cousin, Miss Phoebe Massey, is engaged to be married to George W. Ryerson. The Ryerson-Massey wedding will take place on June 24.

Odell-Shuman Wedding Planned for Next Fall.

The marriage of Miss Shuman to Mr. Odell will not take place before next fall, according to present plans. Both young people attended the North Shore Country Day school.

Miss Shuman also attended the Madeira school and Pine Manor. She was introduced to society jointly with the former Eleanor Wilson, now Mrs. Roger Sherman, at a dinner-dance at the Indian Hill club in September, 1937.

Mr. Odell is engaged in business in Chicago.

Bouscaren-McNulty Wedding to Be June 24.

The date for the marriage of Miss Kathrine McNulty to Henri V. Bouscaren has been set for June 24 at noon in Our Lady of Mount Carmel church. Miss McNulty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. McNulty. Mr. Bouscaren is the second son of the Louis H. G. Bouscarens of Winnetka. The list of wedding attendants is not complete.

The Gordon Louds [Honor Merrell], who have been in Palestine since their marriage last November, are expected in Chicago next month. They are leaving Palestine this week and returning to New York by way of Greece, the Dalmatian coast, and a Mediterranean cruise. Mrs. Loud's parents, the John H. Merrells, expect them to land in New York on June 8.

South Shore Service League to Give Ball

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Is it any wonder that with a fine 4 month old son such as Gerald, Mrs. Gerald W. Morava is an active member of the South Shore Service league, which helps less privileged babies by contributing to the Chicago Maternity center? The league is giving a benefit Lullaby ball on June 3 at the Stevens hotel.

Royal Hair Puller.

Crown Prince Olav of Norway heard a story about his own childhood in Chicago Friday evening:

When the mother of Mrs. William B. Walrath, managing director of the Cradle, was in Oslo in 1910 she was presented to King Haakon and Queen Maud. The story Mrs. Walrath told the crown prince was told her by her mother:

King Haakon asked a little girl who had declined to play with Olav why she didn't want to play with him.

"Because he pulls my hair," the child answered.

"Why don't you slap him when he does that?" suggested the king.

"I can't do that because he's the crown prince," pouted the child.

"Well, you play with him and next time he pulls your hair you slap him and say it is by order of the king," answered King Haakon.

Typographical Frankness.

Child's Psychology.

A mother asked her 4 year old son when he returned home from Sunday school what he had learned.

"All about Jesus," he answered.

"Who was your teacher?" asked his mother.

"She must have been His grandmother—she was so fond of him," answered the child.

Good Morning!

"Let's Celebrate" would be another fitting title for this movie.

The hero and heroine are a gay and adventurous couple brought together by a grinning fate.

Cora Jordan, a bored daughter of the rich, leaves home in search of adventure, taking with her virtually nothing but nerve and courage. . . . And meets Bill Overton, minus a job or the wish to have one, broke—and liking it. . . .

In amusing fashion they come into a lapful of coin, capture a gangster—and marry. . . . But now it's "Whoa" for Cora. She's really not a cheap girl, you see, and Bill IS a decent chap. Both are appalled by thought of their "gin wedding" and seek out Cora's thoroughly disgusted papa to apologize for actions that have resulted in unpleasant newspaper publicity and to assure him that they mean to make a nice, clean "go" of their marriage. . . .

In a cunning three room apartment Cora settles down joyously to being just a little woman at home. Bill gets a job. BUT—Bill's irrepressible. He's not the carpet slipper kind. Everything, to his mind, calls for a celebration. . . . And this isn't marriage as Cora cares for it. . . . At last she leaves Bill and trots home to papa.

To stay?

Suppose you let the picture answer that question for you.

While this little comedy drama has its moments, it's certainly far from the perfect vehicle for either Miss Loy or Mr. Taylor. Both they and a good cast turn out commendable performances—but a lot of the situations and dialog are just plain hollow.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

Gossip, Coast-to-Coast

Hollywood, Cal., May 8.—Engineers of the New York World's Fair are more concerned than they let on about the way the weight of the buildings is "settling." . . . One Hollywood star on Broadway will be brought to court by a chorine on charges of whipping her. . . . Twentieth Century-Fox worked in so many commercial announcements on the Kentucky Derby broadcast that it was difficult to determine whether Johnstown or Zanuck won the race. Rose of Washington Square finished in the money, I think. . . . Mother of Brenda Frazier's boy friend is being escorted by Carlyle Blackwell. . . . Paramount, which has been holding up the Jack Benny picture, can go ahead and release it, as public opinion has swung around completely in his favor. I checked this right across the country, and you can go out and bet on it. The fact that Benny took his medicine without a whimper impressed the public most strongly. . . . If Hollywood poloists want to bet on the British four against the U. S. quartet as reported, Wall street has $25,000 to accommodate them.

They insisted that the public wouldn't accept an unhappy ending." This isn't sour grapes. . . . Bette Davis is la Hepburn's favorite actress. . . . The River Bend Feud

By William MacLeod Raine

(Copyright: 1939: By William MacLeod Raine.)

Jeff Hunter, an American mining engineer, awaits execution in a Mexican jail by order of Pancho Banderas, rebel leader. A peon friend helps him escape to Texas. Jeff meets Joan Raleigh, lost in the vastness of her feudal estate, and assists her home. He meets her brothers, Bill and Phil, and Phil's wife, Mary Lou. When they learn Jeff went to college with their cousin, Raeburn, he is invited to be their guest. An old feud against the Raleighs is being renewed under the leadership of Butler Lane, suspected of poisoning their aunt, his wife, and forging her will. Banderas, routed from Mexico, has joined Lane. Jeff offers to try to make peace with the better element and, with Jim Williams, starts for the ranch of Carl Nielsen. They are pursued and fired on by Banderas and his men.

INSTALMENT XIX.

THE PURSUIT HALTED.

Jim Williams was a little too old for an uphill sprint with bullets zipping at him. His lungs filled and emptied like bellows.

Through the brush they could see puffs of smoke from back of trees and boulders below. The attackers were for the moment ready to rest on their temporary victory. Those above knew that when they started seriously to dislodge the defenders of the rimrock it would not be by a frontal charge. They would begin to outflank them.

"I wisht I had a bronc between my legs," Williams said. "Looks like I got to wear myself to a frazzle doing a marathon over these hills."

"We'll start soon as you're ready, Jim," Hunter said. "No time to lose. Soon as they find we've gone they'll hop into the car and try to cut us off from the rear."

"Yep. That's what they'll do." Williams wriggled back, to be out of sight when he rose, and added, "we'll go right damn now."

They followed a small stream, along which pecan trees grew. The sight of them stirred a nostalgic memory in the old-timer's mind.

"Funny," he said. "I was with a crowd of kids who picked pecans here onct ten-twelve years before you were born. I don't recollect that I have ever been here since." He added, reminiscently: "It was hotter'n hell with the lid on that day. We took off our clothes an' went in swimmin' at a hole up the creek aways."

"Lots of things are funny," Jeff agreed. "For instance, I set out on a peace mission and start by shooting a man I probably have never seen before."

"I heard him squeal. Think you put him outa business?"

"No. Hit him in the leg."

"He's got no kick comin', but I reckon he won't want any more of yore

"What . . . what you aimin' to do to me?" Fidler asked hoarsely.

game," the old cowboy chuckled. "I've seen it happen right often that I knew a guy well to shoot at but not well enough to know his name."

The talk died down. They were traveling across an open mesa, moving too fast for conversation. At any moment the enemy might appear on the rimrock they had lately vacated.

A buzzard was circling in the blue sky above them. Jeff had heard a legend that the bird has an uncanny prescience of impending death. He smiled grimly, wondering if it would find his body or that of Jim lying in the tangled mesquite with a bullet through the heart.

He looked back. Two men showed on the rimrock. One of them caught sight of him, raised a rifle, and fired, but not before Jeff had dropped to the ground. When he raised his head a few moments later he saw both men running toward the dip where the rimrock fell away to meet the slope. One of them was signaling for the car to meet them there.

The fugitives were on their way. The mesa ran down to the jungle. If they could reach this they would have a better chance, for no car could penetrate the thicket. Their foes would have to beat the brush on foot or drop the hunt.

Hunter had to travel slower on account of the older man.

They caught sight of the car swinging round in a semi-circle on the flats to the right. One of the passengers in it took a pot shot at them as it passed. Hunter did not waste time and ammunition answering the fire. Presently he saw their foes piling out of the car and running across the flat to cut them off.

"We're going to make it, Jim," said Jeff. "Keep going. I'll catch up in a minute. Got to put a crimp in this two hundred twenty yard dash."

He dropped to one knee and took careful aim, not to hit but to fling up a spatter of dirt just in front of the foremost man. The runner pulled up sharply, then veered to the right to get out of range. Hunter raced down the mesa slope, picking up rapidly the distance Williams had gained.

The two parties moved toward each other at right angles. There were four of the attackers. Jeff guessed that the wounded one had stayed with the car. Two of the men appeared to be Mexicans, the other two Americans. They ran forward jerkily, now one and now another, stopping to fire as they saw their targets in more open ground.

Williams plunged into the thicket, Jeff at his heels. The engineer stopped to fire one shot at the nearest of those closing in on him. He missed, but he thought that the warning might keep the pursuit from a too impetuous charge into the jungle after their prey.

Jeff could hear his companion threshing through the brush and deflected toward him.

"Everything all right?" he asked when he caught sight of the cowboy.

Not so all-fired good. These damned boots are killing my feet." He added, jauntily, "but by Juda's priest and Gen. Jackson I can take it."

Williams was wearing high-heeled boots so built that his feet were jammed forward toward the toes. They were meant for riders and not pedestrians, and the old man was taking a lot of punishment. But there was nothing Hunter could do about that.

To them there came the sound of somebody breaking a dry twig as he moved through the jungle. Standing back of a mesquite clump, they listened, their eyes searching the brush. Again there reached them the snapping of dry wood.

"Wait here," Jeff murmured. "Don't shoot unless necessary."

He slipped across an open stretch of a dozen yards to the cover of a prickly pear. The approaching man stopped to call, not too loudly, to one of his fellow hunters. An answer lifted from a distance of a stone's throw. Apparently satisfied, the man who had shouted first shuffled into view. He was carrying a revolver in his hand, and was taking a line that would bring him directly between the fugitives.

Jeff waited until he was not more than seven or eight yards distant before he spoke. "Drop that gun, Fidler. You're covered from two sides." His voice was low, but there was a definite threat in its crisp curtness.

"Don't make a sound unless you want us to drill you."

Fidler stopped in his tracks, motionless.

The revolver slipped to the ground.

The disarmed man obeyed.

"Collect his gun, Jim," Jeff said.

Williams picked up the weapon. "Doesn't Lane know better than to send a boy to mill?" he asked gleefully.

"What—what you aiming to do to me?" Fidler asked hoarsely. His throat had gone dry.

An idea had come to Hunter, born of the sight of old Jim hobbling forward in his tight cowboy boots. In this prickly land of cactus and other spined vegetation a barefoot man would be handicapped as badly as a cripple.

"Take off your boots," he said.

Fidler stared at him, his squat thickset figure slumped despondently. He was frightened, not yet sure whether he was to end with the adventure.

"You heard me."

The man picked a bare spot, sat down, and pulled off his boots.

Jeff took the footwear. "Sit right where you are and don't move. If you shout—or try to call the others—we'll be back and settle your hash."

"Maybe I'd better pistol-whip him to make sure," Williams suggested. His voice sounded as if the thought was a cheerful one to him.

"I'll keep still," Fidler promised hurriedly.

"I would advise you to do that," Jeff replied dryly.

They left him sitting on the ground. Both of them were of opinion that there would be no more pursuit at present.

GASOLINE ALLEY—A SUIT OFF THE OLD BLOCK

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Soliloquy in Blue

Foolish Parent Resents Girl's Favorite Beau

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Parent's Folly" might well be the title of today's little discourse.

The boy, in love with said parent's daughter, waved to her the other night as she passed him in a car with her dad. Dad said to his girl:

"If I ever catch you out with him, I'll send both of you to the hospital!"

Dad's objection to the boy is that his religion and nationality are different. The chap holds a good, responsible job for one so young, 24 to be exact. Every one speaks well of him—except father. From the first he objected, with the consequence that his daughter had to resort to lies and girl friends' help to meet the young man away from home.

"My boy friend told me recently that he is getting sick of meeting me on the outside, because he has principles about it," the girl tells. "He said he never did think much of fellows who met girls on the corner. But he loves me as much as I do him, and that is with a love that must end in marriage or we'll do something desperate.

"Parents may wonder why girls go wrong or leave home to have a little place of their own. It never occurs to them that they drive their girls to do things they'd never dream of doing if they could entertain their friends in their homes and be treated decently by their parents.

"I'm not a wayward daughter, as any one who knows me can tell. My mother is on my side, but even she can't buck my dad's will in this case. My boy friend's people welcome me with open arms and they certainly wouldn't do that if I weren't all right. But my dad seems to me to have an insane jealousy toward this particular boy because he is serious about me. What can I do about it all? Lois."

Maybe you have hit the nail on the head, Lois, and it is unreasonable jealousy that prompts his stand. In which event some one else will have to point out the folly of his position. If mother can't or won't do it, perhaps you could press some adult male relative into talking him into reasonability.

But you, Lois, have delivered a good sermon when you charge the obstinate parent with driving girls to do things they'd never dream of doing were dad to act more in the nature of a confidant and a reasonable adviser.

Hot Plate Mats in Three Sizes Easy to Crochet

By ELLEN BRUCE.

There is delightful pride of ownership in the heart of every housewife who can open her linen cabinet and disclose three or four sets of hot plate mats. These simple crochet mats may be made at one sitting and without the use of complicated stitches. Simple crochet composes the mat, and a narrow border of double crochet adds the finishing touch.

For the instructions in crocheting the hot plate mat in three sizes, No. X-258, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Mr. Loud is director of the Megiddo expedition of the oriental institute of the University of Chicago.

Dorothy Herbst to Meet British King and Queen.

A young Chicagoan who will meet King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain during their Canadian visit is Miss Dorothy Herbst, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Herbst of Highland Park. Miss Herbst is leaving next Friday for Ottawa to be the guest of her uncle and aunt, Maj. and Mrs. Clarence E. Steeves, during the week of the king and queen's visit, and she will meet the monarchs at the big garden party at government house that has been arranged for the royal visitors.

There will be several parties for Miss Herbst, among them a tea given by her cousin, Miss Gwynneth Steeves. Miss Steeves, an accomplished figure skater, is taking part in the Minto club's Ice Follies, so Miss Herbst probably will spend more than one evening at the ice revue.

Miss Ruth Herbst, who made her debut with her sister last fall, cannot leave her studies at the Milwaukee-Downer seminary just now, but she and Miss Dorothy will go to Ottawa next winter for the gay whirl of government parties.

Miss Steeves is to be presented to the governor general and his wife at their excellencies' drawing room, the party that officially opens the season. The Misses Herbst will be presented at the same party.

Evanston Junior League to Give Revue in Fall.

After a three year holiday from musical revues the Evanston Junior league is making preparations to present another edition of its famous "Follies" Nov. 9, 10, and 11 in the Glencoe school auditorium. Mrs. William Stahl, chairman, and her chief assistants, Mrs. Drennan J. Slater and Mrs. Carl B. Davis Jr., head the long list of those in charge. There will be a cabaret and dance for league members after the closing performance.

Mrs. Alfred MacArthur returned Saturday from Providence, R. I., with first hand descriptions of her new granddaughter, the infant born on April 15 to Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Gardner Jr. [Georgianna MacArthur]. The baby has been named for her mother and great-grandmother, Mr. MacArthur's mother.

The Warren A. Lamsons just have returned from a holiday in Guaymas, Mexico, famous fishing country, and in Tucson, Ariz. While the Lamsons were in Mexico their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Searles, motored out to California to see the fair in San Francisco and to bask in the sun at Palm Springs. Mr. and Mrs. Searles have taken a house in Winnetka. Miss Jean Lamson entered the Cranbrook school in Michigan on April 1 for a three months' term. She is studying sculpture.

Mrs. Mario Braggiotti Visits Her Parents.

Mrs. Mario Braggiotti, the former Miss Mary Melville Clow, is staying with her parents, the junior William E. Clows, in Lake Forest, until May 15 when she will go east to join Mr. Braggiotti. The Braggiottis, who were in California most of the winter, probably will spend the summer in the east. Mr. Braggiotti's brother, Sebastiano Braggiotti, is a member of the cast of "My Dear Children," with John Barrymore, opening tonight at the Selwyn.

The final Petit Lundi of the season, which will be given at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Goodman Studio theater, will offer a varied program. Mrs. Laird Bell will present some of her "Original Sketches" in French. Mrs. Ballard Moore and Georges Cauuet, director of the International theater, will be seen in "La Nuit de Mai," by Alfred de Musset. And Miss Denise Root, Miss Monique Storrs, M. Cauuet, and William H. Hawkins will put on a one act comedy, "La Ménagère Apprivoisée," by Pierre Veber.

Mrs. Chadwick-Collins, alumnæ director in residence of Bryn Mawr college, will be especial guest at a tea given by the Bryn Mawr College club today at the Arts club and again on Tuesday when Mrs. Stephen Gregory will be hostess at a luncheon at her home in Winnetka.

Monday, May 8.

Generally pretty rough going today. Angry passions mighty near the surface, so don't stir them up. Writing and saying more than is meant are to be avoided. Keep thoughts and acts on basis of sympathy; see all the good you can, but lie low.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead from today, your anniversary, stimulates emotion, pleasure ideals, and need for self-expression, strongest now to July 12, and March 21-July 4, 1940. Adjust inner emotions. Danger: Oct. 21-Nov. 3, and Feb. 29 to March 19, 1940.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Of all the mistakes that can occur at the bridge table—and certainly they are myriad—the most ignominious is the loss of a sure trump trick. When one defender holds Q-x of trumps and the other the blank king it is downright humiliating for them to take no trump trick. And this is especially irritating to one defender when he has tried to guard against this very possibility. Note today's hand:

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Double	3 spades	Pass
3 no trump	Double	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

West probably was not too pleased with his own double of four spades, but, having gotten into sort of a "doubling stride," he persisted grimly.

The club king was the opening lead and East, having visions of ruffing the third round, started a high-low signal by playing the seven spot. West continued with the club ace on the chance that East had started with a singleton, but when the echo was completed, and when declarer dropped the queen, West decided to reconsider matters. There was, of course, a chance that the best play at this point was to lead a low club, forcing East to ruff. If East had the spade queen singleton this might well be the only line of defense that would defeat the contract, inasmuch as it would protect West's singleton king of spades. But on the bidding West decided it was almost certain that South had only a four card spade suit. With a five card suit and no sure club stopper it was an odds-on chance that he would have preferred to bid four spades, rather than three no trump. Thus, if South had only a four card suit, East must have two trumps. If he had the queen a defensive trump trick was safe unless West himself jeopardized it. If he led a third club [he reasoned] East might be lured into ruffing with his low spade, expecting declarer to follow suit with the club jack. If he fell into this quagmire the defenders' spade trick would go up the spout, i. e., declarer would overruff the low spade and then drop West's king and East's queen together.

Shuddering at the very thought of such a tragedy, West decided to let the club suit severely alone and shifted to a low heart. East covered the queen and declarer won with the ace. A heart was then ruffed in dummy and the ten of spades was returned. Lo and behold, for some esoteric, fantastic reason of his own, East took this occasion to "cover an honor with an honor" and put up the spade queen! As West disgustedly threw his own singleton king on the trick, for a fleeting moment he thought that he had made a terrible mistake by not continuing with clubs, thereby allowing East to ruff with the queen. But when, on a spade continuation, East meekly followed suit with the deuce, West's expression was too much for my feeble descriptive efforts.

Cream Cheese Perfect Foil for Vegetables in Salads

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The smooth blandness of cream cheese is a perfect foil for vegetables and fruits in salad. Cream cheese takes three popular salad forms—it's blended with gelatin mixtures, folded into mayonnaise and whipped cream for frozen salads, and it appears in little balls or as a spread on many a vegetable or fruit salad plate.

The first of these five salads veers a little from the usual by placing cheese balls in a jellied mixture. The other four salads have a more or less familiar appearance.

Cheese Ball Aspic Salad.
[Serves six.]

1 tablespoon plain, unflavored gelatin
2 cups tomato juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Salt, celery salt
2 packages cream cheese
2 tablespoons chopped stuffed olives or cut chives
2 tablespoons minced celery

Soak gelatin five minutes in two tablespoons cold tomato juice. Heat a cup more of the juice and dissolve soaked gelatin in it. Add remaining juice with lemon juice, salt, and celery salt to season. Mix olives or chives and celery with cream cheese and shape into balls. Make twelve balls if the salad is to be chilled in a single mold, six if in individual molds. Arrange balls in molds and pour gelatin mixture around them. Chill until firm. Unmold and serve with mayonnaise or cooked dressing on a crisp salad green.

Frozen Cheese-Fruit Salad.

6 ounces [two packages] cream cheese
¾ cup mayonnaise
1 cup whipping cream
½ cup sliced ripe olives
½ cup chopped maraschino cherries
¾ cup diced pineapple
½ cup chopped nuts

Blend cream cheese and mayonnaise. Add to whipped cream and fold in fruit and nuts. Freeze in refrigerator tray or individual molds which will fit into the refrigerator freezing unit. Salad may be frozen in ice and salt also. Serve on salad greens with whipped cream or sour cream mayonnaise.

Fruit, Cheese and Bar-Le-Duc Salad.
[Serves six.]

6 slices canned pineapple, or
12 peach halves
1 three ounce package cream cheese
2 tablespoons bar-le-duc jelly
1 tablespoon cream or top milk

Arrange a slice of pineapple or two peach halves on lettuce or other greens for each salad. Blend bar-le-duc, cream and cheese, shape into balls, and place these in the fruit centers. Serve with French dressing.

CLUSTER O' GRAPES SALAD.

For each salad you'll need half a pear. Place it, round side up, on watercress or lettuce. Spread over with cream cheese softened with milk. Press halves of grapes, cut side down, into the cheese, completely covering the pear. A piece of grape stem may be tucked into the salad at the stem end of the pear. Serve with French dressing or mayonnaise.

AVOCADO-CANTALOUPE-CHEESE SALAD.

This salad may be arranged in either of two ways. Balls of avocado, melon, and seasoned cream cheese may be arranged together on the salad plate, or the fruits may be sliced and put together sandwich fashion, with seasoned cheese between the slices. Several of these "sandwiches" then may be arranged on the salad greens in a group for each serving. French dressing is the accompaniment. The cheese may be seasoned with cut chives, chopped pimiento, or a little horse radish.

CHICAGO BACKS ALLEN FOR GOLDEN GLOVES VICTORY

175 POUNDER IS READY TO MEET EUROPE'S BEST

He'll Tackle Musina or Lazzari.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

"Watch this next fighter. He's going to be another Joe Louis," advised one of the seconds during the final night of the Golden Gloves tournament in Loyola university gymnasium last February. Just then a well muscled, finely proportioned colored lad ducked under the ropes and stood in his corner waiting for the start of his fight.

Altus Allen.

He did resemble Louis somewhat, the Louis who won a Golden Gloves light heavyweight title five years ago before he had filled out to his present weight of 200 pounds. And, like Louis, his face was expressionless.

That dead pan may not be natural, we thought, for since Louis' spectacular rise to wealth and the championship of the world many young, inexperienced amateurs have copied the style and expressions of the Brown Bomber.

The Name Is Allen.

Two minutes later Altus Allen—there's an alliterative name for you—had won his first Golden Gloves victory. Before the evening was over he had qualified for the Tournament of Champions.

Hundreds of people cheered Allen that night. Many believed they had seen the best amateur boxer in Chicago's tournaments, certainly the best prospect in the 175 pound class. More watched him in the early rounds of the Tournament of Champions and some now will recall that Allen lost a decision to Ragon Kinney of Arkansas Tech on the last night of that tournament.

That defeat mired Allen in the lists of nearly 400 boxers who had failed to reach the semi-final round. He didn't fight before 22,000 in the championships. He had missed on his bid for fame and if he saw the fights that last night it either was because he bought a ticket or sneaked in through the boxers' pass gate.

But the coaching staff of the Chicago intercity team, Johnny Behr, Paddy Kane, and Fred Caserio, remembered Altus Allen.

He Likes Them Big.

"There's one boy from the Tournament of Champions we want on the intercity squad," the coaches said. "That's Allen." And Allen was named. That was all the break he needed.

What Allen did during the training period is history. Weighing 177 pounds, he fought all the light heavyweights and heavyweights. Straight right hand punches, a powerful short left hook which does remind one of Joe Louis' attack, and a weaving style were as natural to this boy as ever they were to the Golden Gloves amateur of 1934 now champion of all professional heavyweights.

Allen might easily have been named to support Jimmy Reeves in the 175 pound class against New York. But Chicago needed a heavyweight. Kinney could take care of the light heavyweight assignment. Day after day Allen outfought big Tony Novak of Kansas City, the Golden Gloves champion, and he was superior to Mike Zampini of Cleveland, and the other heavyweights.

You know the rest of the story, how Allen fought Enzo Avondoglio of New York, who outweighed him twenty pounds, and all but knocked out the big Italian in the first round, then

Tribune Golf Pupils! Meet Your Teachers

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Tribune golf school students, meet your professors—Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, Lew Waldron of Mohawk, Matt Matteson of Ridge, and W. C. [Bill] Gordon of Tam O' Shanter.

This is the foursome of professionals who will handle the lecturing chore through the four lessons of the seventh annual free TRIBUNE school, the first of which will be given tomorrow night on the four courses of the Chicago park district.

While their fellow members in the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association of America are circulating among the various classes, giving individual tips on the fundamentals of the game, these four men will address the classes through a microphone set up on specially built platforms. It will be their duty to coördinate the teaching so that it will be understood by all.

125,000 Get Instruction.

The school, which has provided more than 125,000 golfers with instruction in the A B C's of the game these last six years, is open to all without charge. You can tee off as a student simply by bringing a golf club to the course nearest your home for tomorrow night's first lesson. Other lessons will be given Thursday; Tuesday, May 16, and Thursday, May 18. All classes will begin promptly at 7 p. m. and will be finished within an hour.

Tom Walsh, who will conduct the classes at Marquette park, was one of the founders of the school in 1933. Walsh, a leading apostle of group instruction, is also the oldest of a family which gave five brothers to professional golf. One of these, Packy, will assist him in the lessons at Marquette. Walsh is president of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association and national secretary of the P. G. A.

Tours with Walter Hagen.

Lew Waldron has been a regular in THE TRIBUNE school since he came to Chicago, and is one of its most enthusiastic supporters. He has had considerable experience in exhibition work, having toured with Walter Hagen for a number of years. When Lew was breaking into golf in his native Boston, a young pitcher for the Boston Red Sox decided to take up golf, and Waldron gave him his first lesson. The pitcher, who later became an outfielder and a smart golfer, was Babe Ruth. Al Jolson and Eddie Cantor also cut their golf-

European Boxers Are Down to Weight and Full of Fight

BY STEWART OWEN.

Trainer Steve Klaus of the All-European Golden Gloves team was wearing a smile of great contentment last night after his boxers had completed their third boxing session in preparation for their international bouts against Chicago's champions in the Stadium Friday night. Up until yesterday Klaus had been hopeful of seeing the Europeans gain their first victory over Chicago since the international bouts were inaugurated in 1931; last night he was as confident of attaining that goal as the boys themselves have been ever since they were named on the international squad.

When the boys went into the ring all evidence of their days of idleness and easy living during their long trip from Dublin had been erased. Every one was down to fighting weight. Paddy Dowdall, the Irishman who is featherweight champion of Europe, stepped on the scales before breakfast and sent the indicator around to an exact 126 pounds, thereby collecting one dollar from Klaus, to whom he had given odds of five to one that he would weigh in at the featherweight limit yesterday morning.

Always Keeps His Promises.

"I said I would have me weight down to nine stone by Sunday morning and I always keep me promises," said Paddy as he pocketed the dollar.

Klaus was willing to surrender the dollar just to learn what Paddy could do in the ring with the excess poundage gone. The Irishman went through three rounds at top speed, giving his sparring partner a good walloping.

Dowdall was good, but it was Eric Agren, the welterweight champion of Sweden, who brought the greatest joy to the trainer. Agren stepped into the ring against Verne Patterson, Chicago Golden Gloves welterweight champion of 1937, who has had considerable success as a professional boxer. Agren tore into the colored boy and twice in their two rounds sent him flying through the ropes. Eric, who is better known as a slugger than as a boxer, had no great difficulty in keeping out of the way of Patterson's punches. He rushed his opponent so furiously that after the first few seconds he had Patterson on the defensive most of the time.

Predicts Victory for Agren.

YANKEES BLAST OUT 19 HITS OFF 3 SOX PITCHERS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Those world champion Yankees don't appear to have changed much, except in personnel. The great Joe Di Maggio is absent because of an injury and the once great Lou Gehrig is just an old fellow resting on the bench. But the murderous attack that eventually slays 'em all still carries on. The champions unfurled that attack yesterday, part of it in rain and part of it in sunshine, and the White Sox, helpless in the face of the withering barrage, retreated, 15 to 4, before 35,000 in Comiskey park.

The Yanks fired their first shot, a single, in the second inning. The last heard from their deadly bats was another single in the ninth. But in between these two modest hits there were seventeen others of assorted dimensions, such as three doubles, one triple and three robust homers, all of which helped to make the afternoon pleasant for Charles [Red] Ruffing. Ruffing achieved his fourth triumph of the season on a yield of nine safeties.

They Just Pour It On.

Hitting the homers, two of which were by Joe Gordon and the other by Red Rolfe, was just the Yankees' idea of amusement. They didn't need them to make the day's task a success. What settled it in their behalf was a fourth inning in which they rose up in all their spectacular fury. Without warning they landed on John Whitehead. They were equally merciless with Jack Knott, Whitehead's rescuer. And when the dizzy inning had been concluded the Yanks had a cluster of six runs.

The home run storm came after Whitehead's failure had been forgotten, but not before Knott could be relieved. Knott was snared for a homer by Gordon with a man on base in the fifth. In the sixth it was Bill Dietrich's turn for punishment and he got it—also from Gordon. The youngster who succeeded Tony Lazzeri exploded his second round tripper with two on, bringing to five his total of runs driven in. Then the Yanks scored two by ordinary processes in the seventh and wound up with their last run when Rolfe dented Dietrich for a homer in the ninth.

Fielding and Hitting Both Off.

The Sox not only didn't hit, but their fielding dropped far below the pace they had maintained while winning ten out of twelve games. Gerald Walker, who compensated with his season's third homer, good for half of the Sox's runs, permitted a grounder to escape him. Knott and Marvin Owen were guilty of bad throws to first, but the two offenses were excusable, although the Yanks profited by them in the sad fourth. The base wasn't being guarded by Joe Kuhel. He went on a brief vacation as the result of a bruised knee suffered in Saturday's game.

Except for the rain the first inning was uneventful, but the second developed complications. The Yankees began to act like the Yankees. After Dickey had been retired on a fly Rosenthal would not have been able to reach in the chummy New York stadium Keller singled to center. He skipped to third on Selkirk's double down the right field line. Gordon bounced to Owen, whose throw to Tresh nailed Keller at the plate. The customers shouted appreciation of this, but when Dahlgren singled to center to score Selkirk there was only silence. Ruffing flied to Kreevich for the third out.

Away Goes Whitehead.

Whitehead disposed of Dickey to start the fourth and then promptly dissolved in a shower of rain and Yankee hits. Keller touched off the six run foray with a triple to right center. Selkirk singled to center, scoring Keller. Gordon caromed a single off Whitehead's glove. Dahlgren singled cleanly to left, Selkirk

Luck or Fate.

I liked your saucy little cap
As you played in the sands;
And hints of tears within your eyes
When mother washed your hands.

The pockets of your romper suit
Were grimy through and through;
You had them crammed with nails and string
And cake and gumdrops, too.

And when the sun had marked the hour
Of noon, I felt a hunch
That I would have to share with you
Your much soiled pocket lunch.

I shuddered at the thought of germs
As gratefully we ate—
But, here we are, alive today,
The answer? Luck or fate.

To go all of the way together,
However closely bound the flock
The years must one day sever

And grieving doesn't help too much
Be it husband, wife or brother.

LEIBER, MARTY ALSO OUT AFTER 10 TO 3 DEFEAT

Giants Club Bryant for 16 Hits.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 7.—Capt. Bill Herman of the Cubs was benched for the first time in his career tonight in a sweeping and irate order from Manager Gabby Hartnett. Herman, named last season as a candidate for Charley Grimm's toga when it became apparent that Grimm was on the Wrigley skids, is set down for unsatisfactory work on both offense and defense. Herman became a regular in 1932.

Bill Herman.

Hartnett's action followed what he indicated he considered is something worse than a slumpful performance by the Cubs when they blew the opener with the New York Giants this afternoon, 10 to 3. The shakeup announced for tomorrow is one of a series which has been made since the Cubs went into a tail spin after winning five of their first six games. It was deemed more drastic than earlier revisions because of the benching of Capt. Herman and also because Hank Leiber, counted to play center field and bat cleanup all year, was sent to splinter row along with Herman.

Cavarretta in Right Field.

Phil Cavarretta, benched Friday in Brooklyn because he had not driven in a run in thirteen games, returns to the lineup tomorrow, but as a right fielder in place of Joe Marty. Marty was benched after Lon Warneke's one hitter, which had reduced his batting average to .088, and was returned when Carl Reynolds dropped to .133. When restored to the lineup Marty continued his slump and had a mark of .068 until he singled with two out in the ninth inning of today's debacle. Cavarretta will resume play with an average of .229.

Jim Gleeson, also benched after the Warneke one hitter, will play center field in place of Leiber. Gleeson, like Cavarretta, has a batting average of .229. Leiber sits down with an average of .213.

Up to Minute Figures, Folks.

The new lineup, with the batting averages and the averages of the players supplanted, follows:

Bartell, shortstop, .211, replacing Mesner, .214.
Hack, third base, .354, dropped from first to second in the order.
Galan, left field, .267, remains third in batting order.
Gleeson, center field, .229, replacing Leiber, .213.
Hartnett, catch, .267, moves up to fifth.
Cavarretta, right field, .229, replacing Marty, .089.
G. Russell, first base, .455.
Mesner, second base, replacing Capt. Herman, .220.
Lee, pitcher, won 2, lost 3.

None of the shakeups prior to the one which is announced for tomorrow, except the one which placed Glen Russell and Mesner in the lineup for a heavy part in the 4 to 3 Cub victory in Brooklyn yesterday, has had any inspiring effects on the high salaried members of the Cub cast. There is no reason to believe the Cubs will spurt with tomorrow's new setup.

See Cub Stars on Spot.

The manner of Hartnett in making his latest move indicated to some observers who have seen hell poppin' on a ball club, that Hartnett is getting set permanently to replace some of the lads who have been giving little or nothing for salaries ranging from $10,000 to $24,000 a year. Most of these players, on their showing in the last ten days, could be replaced to great advantage by earnest ball players in the $3,000 and $4,500 classifications. Princely salaries paid by the generous Mr. Wrigley are widely blamed for the smug inertia that appears to be wrecking the team and undermining Manager Hartnett's position.

If Hartnett is to blame for the foldup of the Cubs, there are secrets that haven't leaked out of the whispering circle. Gabby, who made a homer yesterday and another today to demonstrate that Cub bats really aren't manufactured out of short lengths of garden hose, expresses himself as willing to fight often and hard for his job.

Hartnett's Position Solid.

So far there have been indications that he has the support of the home office. That's why it is believed that several rather well known fellows soon may be playing or trying to play for other employers.

It should be mentioned, however, that there have been no suggestions of a plot to undermine Hartnett or throw down the generous Wrigley who in the last three weeks has paid his ball players thousands of dollars they scarcely have earned, as such

SIMMS PROVIDES BOXING TEST FOR BROWN TONIGHT

Cleveland Veteran Meets Youngster at Marigold.

Eddie Simms, Cleveland trial horse, who has met the Max Baers, Tommy Loughrans, Bob Pastors, John Henry Lewises, Joe Louises, and Jack Ropers, will meet a little known heavyweight named Clarence Brown in a ten round bout tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

Simms, who will be making his first Chicago appearance in five years, anticipates a soft touch in Brown, but he may be mistaken. Brown was substituted for Lem Franklin, who was removed because of a back ailment.

However, Brown may prove to be a stronger opponent than Franklin. At least the records indicate such will be the case. In a previous meeting with Franklin last Dec. 20, Simms scored an eight round technical knockout. Buff Mellinger, Louisville 190 pounder, then whipped Simms in Louisville the following Feb. 20.

This achievement paved the way for Mellinger's Chicago Stadium debut against Brown March 31 and Clarence upset Mellinger in five rounds. Moreover, Brown also defeated Paul Hartnek, former Chicago Golden Gloves champion, in Milwaukee Jan. 18. Subsequently, Clarence fought eight rounds to a draw with Alex Kettles in Marigold arena. Preliminary matches:

Tommy Pallatin, South Bend, vs. Don Swenson, St. Paul [6], 147.

George Nyberg, Port Arthur, Ont., vs. Pug Murphy, Danville [4], 150.

Ed Ferris, Benton Harbor, vs. Rex Thomas, south side [4], 165.

Eu Eulien vs. Young Armando Santiago [4] 136.

Tribune Golf Pupils! Meet Your Teachers

Jackson park's teacher, who has been stationed there since the school started will be Matt Matteson, genial Ridge pro. Matteson, a native of Blue Island, came into golf as a caddy at Ravisloe, where he eventually served his apprenticeship under Eddie Loos, Alex Taylor, and Jim Wilson. He has been at Ridge for the last sixteen summers and at Gulf Hills, Miss., for as many winters. Matteson concentrates on teaching, his star pupil being Eleanor Dudley, who has won the western junior and Illinois state titles.

The newcomer to the foursome of head teachers is Bill Gordon, who is in his first year as a pro at Tam O'Shanter, after having served at Belleair, Fla.; Columbus, O.; Waterloo, Ia., and Rockford, Ill. He will lecture at Diversey. Gordon has a real golfing background, for his father was professional at Hartford, Conn., and later laid out the famed Brae Burn course near Boston. Donald Ross, one of the greatest pros and architects in golf history, was Gordon's sponsor when he was making a start.

ROAMERS WIN OPENER.

The Chicago Roamers baseball team opened its season with an 11 to 3 triumph over the McCoy Coals yesterday at Grand and Long avenues.

Preakness Is Next Objective for Johnstown

BY HOWARD BARRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 7.—Johnstown, winner of yesterday's Kentucky Derby, will go back east early this week with the Preakness as his next goal. This rich stake event, which will be run Saturday at Pimlico, will bring a showdown between Johnstown and Gilded Knight, which has scored two notable victories this spring, numbering Challedon, El Chico, Impound, and other good three year olds among his victims.

Chicago race fans seem likely to get a view of Johnstown in action during the coming season because he has been nominated for the Arlington Classic. His owner, William Woodward, said yesterday that he fully intends to send him out to fill this engagement. With the exception of El Chico, every horse which ran in the derby is eligible for the Classic.

May Be One of Greats.

The consensus of those who saw Johnstown win at Churchill Downs was that he is quite likely to go on and earn a place among the great horses of American turf history. In scoring his eight length victory, he showed everything that a first class horse should show—the ability to get away well, the early speed to take the position best suited to his style of going, and the stamina to finish powerfully.

It will be a long time before those who were at Churchill Downs yesterday will forget that early sprint for position, when Johnstown hooked up with El Chico in a dash of about a quarter of a mile past the stands. El Chico, undefeated as a two year old, had had Johnstown's number last season, but time has gone on and the Woodward colt has developed whereas his rival has not.

Beats El Chico at Own Game.

In that rush through the first quarter of a mile Johnstown beat El Chico at his own game—sprinting, and in the stretch he beat Challedon at his own game — stamina and finishing power. He showed again yesterday that he can do everything any of his three year old rivals can do—and do it much better than any other.

It is certain that he will again be the favorite next Saturday in the Preakness because he has surpassed with ease every performance of Gilded Knight.

Johnstown is built like a horse that will continue to develop. He's a strapping fellow, having been much the biggest horse in the field yesterday. But there's nothing awkward about him. He moves with splendid coördination. His strides are of tremendous length and power.

Staying Power from Dam.

Those who had concentrated on examining his blood-lines rather than his performances had been of the opinion that he couldn't go a distance because his sire, Jamestown, who was a

McCormick Hits One with Bases Filled.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 7.—(AP)—Paul Derringer scored his third straight victory today as the first place Cincinnati Reds pounded out a 13 to 4 triumph over the Phillies before 18,046 fans.

HARTNETT TAKES TIME TO TEACH BOYS BASEBALL

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—The New York World's Fair baseball school for boys held its second session today, with 100 eager youngsters hanging on every word from Gabby Hartnett, Chicago Cubs' manager; Stanley Hack, the Cubs' brilliant third baseman, and Augie Galan, star outfielder.

With no inaugural ceremonies to clutter up the program and no band to attract the curious, the class moved quickly. Gabby, his florid features bathed in perspiration, divested himself of his coat, donned a catcher's mit, and for twenty minutes gave his attentive listeners valuable pointers.

New Yankees Catch On Fast

Charley Keller, rookie outfielder with the New York Yankees, comes sliding into third base on his triple in the fourth inning of yesterday's game against the White Sox. It seems all you have to do is put a Yankee uniform on a young man and he promptly becomes a siege gun. Marv Owen is taking the throw from the outfield. The Yankees won, 15 to 4. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

scoring and Gordon going to third. Whitehead was hanging on the ropes by this time and Ruffing flattened him for the count by singling to center, Gordon scoring.

When all that was left of Whitehead had been picked up and carted away Knott came on, but he wasn't able to acclimate himself. He got Crosetti on a fly to Walker, but for the Yanks this was only a lull. Knott had an idea he could pick Ruffing off first base and threw wild to Radcliff, so Dahlgren scored and Ruffing went to third. Rolfe spanked a single to left, scoring Ruffing, and continued to second when the playful Walker permitted the ball to roll past. Rolfe then scored on Henrich's double, but Rosenthal was able to flag down a liner by Dickey.

They Untie Knott.

The champs lambasted Knott for three hits in the fifth, but only one was important. It was good for two runs. Keller led off with a pass and Selkirk filed to Walker, but Gordon took care of everything. He drilled the first of his two homers into the left field stand. Dahlgren then singled, Ruffing fanned, and Crosetti doubled, but peace was restored on Rolfe's fly to Walker.

The Sox worked the same trick in their half, scoring their first two runs on Walker's homer after Owen had walked.

Gordon was heard from again in the sixth, after two were out. Dietrich started his share of the day's labor by retiring Henrich. Dickey singled to right, then Keller also was retired. Selkirk settled for a walk and along came Gordon with his second homer to left, a cluster of three runs blooming from the drive. The Sox recovered two of these in the sixth on Radcliff's double, which scored Kreevich and Tresh, who had singled their way to base.

Ah! The End!

Eight Yanks batted in the seventh, but only two of them scored. This started because McNair and Radcliff got tangled up over Ruffing's high pop and let it fall for a single. A pass went to Rolfe and Dickey was punctured by one of Dietrich's pitches, filling the bases. A single by Keller drove in two. Then the scoring was concluded with Rolfe's home run thump into the right field seats in the ninth.

The second game of the series between the White Sox and Yankees today will be a sort of an examination session for pitchers. Manager James Dykes will introduce Edgar Smith, the southpaw recently obtained from the Athletics. Dykes wants to see what the fellow can do and also he appreciates that the champions aren't quite as tough on left handed pitching. Joe McCarthy, the Yankee boss, will start Wes Ferrell, who hasn't pitched one inning this season. Ferrell must produce or depart when cutting down time arrives.

The mishap which kept Joe Kuhel off first base yesterday occurred in the opening inning of Saturday's game. He bruised his right knee sliding into third base, but played the remainder of the game. During the night the knee swelled to twice its normal size. Two or three more days of rest will fix him up.

The White Sox list was trimmed a bit yesterday with the release of infielder Joe Gedzius to the club's Shreveport Texas league farm. Gedzius was purchased from Lubbock, Tex.

Ken Silvestri was a Sox invalid yesterday. A case of grippe forced him to miss starting in the catching position, a place he has occupied daily since the season opened.

G. Walker, crossing home plate on his home run in the fifth inning, is congratulated by Pete Pervan, Sox batboy.

Europe's Fight Champions at Ring Weights

tion before. Peire is a quiet, meek appearing young fellow in his street clothes. Those who haven't seen him fight would never take him for a fighter. He boxed three rounds yesterday, two against Roosevelt Thomas, a colored lightweight, and one against the much heavier Patterson. On speed alone he could have gained a decision over either, but he wasn't content merely to box with them and keep out of the way of their blows. He waded in and mixed with both, trading punch for punch whenever they resorted to slugging. Peire's ability to fight was a revelation to supporters of the European team; heretofore they had regarded him as an excellent boxer with lots of speed, but only Klaus and his Italian teammates had known that he could more than hold his own in a rough and tumble battle.

Nardecchia Too Much for Sparmate.

Olli Lehtinen, Finnish flyweight, and Guido [Mickey Mouse] Nardecchia, Italian bantamweight, each went three rounds, showing marked superiority over their opponents. Nardecchia had his sparring partner completely befuddled before their first round was half over. He waltzed and pranced about flicking rights and lefts to the Chicagoan's face and ducking under or skillfully sidestepping the blows aimed at him. Then when his opponent thought Nardecchia had grown tired of it and was retreating in the general direction of his native land, Guido would change his course and come charging in from some unexpected angle to pepper away at him again.

Anton Raadik, the Estonian middleweight champion of Europe, and Luigi Musina, Italy's light heavyweight title holder, went along at their customary pace, Raadik wading into Eugene Clark, a colored light heavyweight, as though the world title were at stake. Musina was the same unruffled, debonair Musina that he always is, in the ring or out of it.

Several Attend Mass.

There was no roadwork for the European champions yesterday morning. Instead, several of them attended mass at the Holy Name cathedral with their trainer, while the others took advantage of the change in routine to get in long Sunday morning naps. The early morning running will be resumed this morning on the track of the Lake Shore playground, with three rounds of boxing scheduled again this afternoon. From now until Friday the same program will be followed. This year's squad is one that needs no driving to keep at work. The boys are eager to show the crowd of 21,000 that they are just as good as they think they are.

Though the Stadium is expected to be sold out by Friday night, there are still seats available in all price divisions. Prices are $3.30, $2.20, $1.65, and $1.10. You can buy tickets at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and in the lobby of Tribune Tower, or you may order them by mail. HERMAN BENCHED AFTER CUBS LOSE TO GIANTS, 10-3

Clay Bryant pitched all the way today, possibly because he has been a little too avid about resigning assignments. He gave up sixteen hits and twenty-five bases. Moreover, it was his error on a double play ball that really blew the game out of the realm of close competition.

Since it was the first meeting of the Cubs and Giants since the big trade of last November, there may be some interest in what the chattels in the trade did during the afternoon. Bill Jurges made a double and a single and scored two runs. Dick Bartell, hero of a great poison mystery, nursed his stomachache for the fourth day since the Cubs arrived in greater New York. Frank Demaree made a double and a single and drove in two runs. Hank Leiber assisted in the production of the Cubs' second run with his first hit since last Thursday, a single in the fourth inning. Gus Mancuso and Ken O'Dea sat on their respective benches.

Cubs Lead—Temporarily.

Bryant's setback gave him a record of one defeat and one victory. Cliff Melton, the winning pitcher, previously had lost two and had won none. Hal Schumacher will be Lee's mound foe tomorrow.

After two futile Cub innings the Giants scored one in their half of the second when Bob Seeds doubled off Hack's glove, advanced on an infield out and scored on Whitehead's sacrifice fly. The Cubs tied it in the third when G. Russell beat out a hit, took second on Jurges' wild throw, and made the remainder of the circuit on two infield outs.

Galan walked in the fourth, went to third on Leiber's single and scored while Marty was bouncing into a double play. Ott's single, Seeds' double and an infield out gave the Giants the tying run in their half.

Hartnett Parks One.

Moore's bunt started the Giants' four-run fifth. Jurges hit one back to Bryant, who threw the ball into centerfield. Danning also hit a double play ball to Mesner who tossed the ball to Herman instead of stepping on the bag, and the play was

2,000 UNIVERSES BROUGHT WITHIN SCIENTISTS' KEN

100 Inch Telescope Bares Celestial Secrets.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Davis, Tex., May 7.– [Special.]—On this Sunday night, sitting on a mountain top under the brilliant skies of Texas, the leading astronomers of the world learned something new regarding the architecture of the universe, if not of the supreme architect.

Dr. Edwin Hubble.

Dr. Edwin Hubble, director of Mount Wilson observatory, gave to the conference of astronomers gathered on Mount Locke in honor of the opening of McDonald observatory of the University of Chicago and the University of Texas, the result of fifteen years work with the 100 inch telescope at his command, which shows for the first time the orderly sequence of the birth and growth of galaxies of stars such as the milky way in which we live.

Seek New Explanation.

This was in the form of photographs of two thousand distinct nebulae, each of which is a universe similar to ours. These have not been published and present a story which for the first time takes complete form in its essentials. The theoretical astronomers were asked to take the visual facts and test their theories against them, and make new explanations.

Eight hundred of these brighter nebulae show an unbroken sequence from glowing clouds to huge spirals. They are of fantastic shapes, but all show a birth at the center and a growth out of this through globular masses which flatten into lens shaped bodies throwing out fiery tentacles.

The study is one of evolution of nebulae or a universe. The Milky Way is of the same order. It may be that this evolution is determined by internal structure, or that an external force such as tidal action enters, but whatever it is a basic orderly development out of chaos is presented.

Measured in Light Years.

The average distance of these nebulae is from seven to ten million light years. The faintest group is 500 million light years away. The fainter 1,200 photographs bear out the clear evidence of the sequence found in newer 800.

"The portion of the universe," Dr. Hubble said, "that can be explored with telescopes is populated very sparsely by the extra galactic nebulae. These nebulae are stellar systems comparable with our own system of the Milky Way. They all are of the same order of luminosity, averaging about one hundred million times as bright as the sun, but they exhibit a wide variety of structural forms.

"The different forms fall naturally into a progressive sequence. At one end of the sequence are the structureless, globular nebulae, while at the other end are the familiar spiral nebulae [such as the Andromeda] consisting of two winding outward from the central nucleus along spiral paths."

Two new white dwarfs were found with the 82 inch telescope during the first month of its use, Prof. G. P. Kuiper of McDonald reported today. These are small stars of great density and the question is what stage of evolution they are in. These were found in the Milky Way.

Condensation One Theory.

Whether any star in our neighborhood has a system of planets like the solar system may be possible of determination in a few years, Dr. Bertil Lindblad of Stockholm observatory said today. New power at McDonald, refinement in technique or the use of the 200 inch telescope that will be in operation in California in a year or two, may solve this problem, which touches the question as to whether the earth is unique. It may be no more unique than the Milky Way galaxy, which has shrunk in recent years through new exploration of galactic space.

There is nothing inherently impossible in the thesis of other planetary systems, the Swedish astronomer said, particularly if one accepts the theory that they are formed by a condensation process similar to that which gives birth to the stars. If they resulted from star collisions they would be extremely likely unless in the thickly populated outlying globular clusters.

The solar system of which the earth is a member lies in an unneighborly region of the galaxy with stars far apart like villages in these Texas prairies, Dr. Lindblad said. It is part of a local system of far flung stars which are getting thinner as they move outward on the arm of a great spiral. Our part of the galaxy seems to be beginning to disperse, matter thrown off from the center, which is about 30,000 light years away.

Dr. Lindblad pictured places of eternal light, the globular clusters of stars on the far edges of empty space, where stars are one hundred times more closely packed than those around the sun. If there is a planet in this region the inhabitants would see a sky studded with hundreds of moonlike stars.

Cannot See Our Own.

Recent studies of systems similar to our galaxy have led to these conclusions. We cannot see our own because we are inside it. These other galaxies are a million light years away, in the form of slowly unwinding spirals. With the new telescope and other tools it may be possible to prove the shape of our galaxy and its stage in evolution.

The galaxies, he said, have stages of growth and decline like organisms. The beginning is a revolving mass of what is thought to be gas and dust. Nuclei of condensation are formed, revolving at great speed, forming a disk with the stars close together. This later throws out arms of stars and dust, which become longer and thinner. But in the meantime matter is coming in again on another arm so that in time it will return to the disc form again.

The Milky Way galaxy, Dr. Lindblad said, seems to be in an early stage of its career. Within the center, he said, it is reasonable to estimate a closed packed mass of about one hundred billion billion stars, more than three times as many as have been estimated for the whole galaxy up to the present. Within the dense nucleus of the galaxy conditions would appear to the observer much as they do on earth.

Earth Less than Speck.

The sky would be brighter and more thickly studded, but not much more than one finds on a clear night in the southern hemisphere. Within this system the earth is less than a speck, but man's greatness seems to lie in his thought that encompasses all things in an ascending scale of knowledge.

Progression along this sequence, Dr. Hubble says, is smooth and continuous. There are no gaps or sudden cataclysmic transitions. The series begins with a series without internal structure, through globular masses and flattening to lens shaped bodies. In order of appearance the structure consists of a bright central lens, circular patterns formed by dark material silhouetted against the luminous backgrounds of the nebulæ, and spiral patterns formed of dark material.

Spring Shifts Scenery

BLOSSOMS and green buds gradually are blotting out the winter views through the woods at the Du Page county farm. Landscapes are closing in as the leaves come out on shade and forest trees and in the orchards. Spring days are shifting the scenery.

Pear, plum, and wild cherry trees started blooming last week. Apple blossoms are beginning to open. Wild flowers are blooming on the floor of the deeper woods and leaves are turning green on the small trees and underbrush. Open woodlands are carpeted with grass. Most of the larger timber still looks bare from a distance.

Elm Leaves Late.

Water maples bloomed more than a month ago. They are now covered with small leaves. Hard maples are just beginning to bud. Elm leaves are later than usual about making their appearance this year. Buds are just starting to swell on both American and red elms.

Spring colors soon will be at their best in the woods. They never are so brilliant and striking as those of fall, but they are just as varied and much more delicate. The early foliage comes in many tints and shades of soft colors.

Many of the shade and forest trees have beautiful flowers. Those of the horse chestnuts are about the most spectacular now. The rust colored, fuzzy flowers are five to seven inches long. Surrounding each flower are four leaves with much the same coloring as the flowers and each bearing seven slender leaflets that droop like half folded umbrellas at the ends of the leaf stems.

Although the flowers and leaves of the horse chestnuts appear timid and delicate at this stage, they become rugged individualists later on. The flowers develop hard fruits, or buckeyes, with prickly shells and the leaves often hang on in the fall after other trees are bare.

Hickory Buds Open.

The big, fuzzy flowering buds on the shagbark hickories are swelling, but only a few are beginning to open. They will be among the showiest of the tree flowers within a few days.

Red and pin oak buds are starting. Many of these trees still have some of last summer's dry leaves hanging alongside the pink, new twigs. All oaks produce beautiful flowers, those on members of the black oak family being highly colored. Most of the white and bur oaks look bare as in winter, although the buds are beginning to swell.

Crabapple Trees Green.

Leaves are out and green on the wild crabapples. Willows that grow in the low lands and near the ponds are covered with yellowish tinted leaves that are beginning to turn green.

Ash trees are in full bloom. The reddish brown clusters of flowers are in plain view all over the tops of the trees because the leaf buds are not yet open. Boxelders were in bloom last week with honeybees buzzing about the blossoms.

GOLFERS ATTEND CHURCH; ASSURED THERE'S NO HELL

Needham, Mass., May 7.—(AP)—Dressed for fishing and golfing, fifty Needham men parked their tackle and golf clubs outside the Evangelical Congregational church today and attended a service arranged especially for them.

The early risers heard the Rev. Edward M. Condit declare there is no hell except of man's own creation in his sermon, which he repeated later at the regular service. He said men could create an economic or domestic hell on earth and possessed the power within themselves to transform that hell into a heaven.

The service was arranged at the request of the fishermen and golfers. The minister said it would be continued through May and June.

Two Seized in Champaign on Disorderly House Charge

Champaign, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—Harold "Humpy" Butts and his wife, Peggy, were arrested early today on a charge of keeping a disorderly resort in a raid by Champaign police on a house at 103 East Church street. Both gave bond at the police station, but were immediately placed under arrest by Bert S. Walker, sherif of Champaign county, on state warants charging Butts with operating a disorderly house and his wife as being an inmate of a disorderly house. They were placed in Champaign county jail. Butts was indicted by the Champaign county grand jury investigating alleged vice and corruption in Champaign, charged with keeping a house of prostitution and furnished $1,500 bond to secure his release.

While spread of the ailment by infected rodents heretofore had been suspected, it was proved, the health service said, by recent research by Dr. Charles Armstrong, a staff surgeon, and Dr. Lewis K. Sweet, Washington children's specialist.

SEES HIGHWAYS FOR A SPEED OF 100 MILES HOUR

New York, May 7.—(AP)—A national highway system to be completed in twenty years which will permit 100 mile an hour speeds, turns at fifty miles an hour, and eliminate the menace of blowouts, collisions, drunks and road hogs, was envisioned today by Designer Norman Bel Geddes.

Geddes outlined his plan after five years of study and recent talks with President Roosevelt and congressional highway officials. The fundamentals of the plan are:

An integrated national highway system under one central authority instead of the present mass of roads under federal, state and local authorities; complete segregation of trafic into individual lanes; three required speeds—50, 75, and 100 miles an hour, and intersections, taking up no more room than the present cloverleaf, but allowing left turns at 50 instead of 10 miles an hour.

President Roosevelt recently gave congress a public roads bureau report calling for a regional system of interconnecting, modernized road networks.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

GRAIN EXPORTS IN 1938 BOOSTED BY 142 MILLION

Corn Tops U. S. List at $94,496,089.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—An increase of $142,549,000 in the value of grain and grain products exported from the United States in 1938 and a drastic decrease in imports of such products was reported today by C. Roy Mundee, chief of the foodstuffs division of the department of commerce.

Such exports reached a value of $233,554,000 in the calendar year 1938 compared with $91,095,000 in 1937. The 1938 figure was the highest for any year since 1929. Their value in 1936 was $29,556,000 and in 1935 it was $28,922,0000.

Imports of grain and grain products in 1938 were valued at $7,976,000, or only 7.8 per cent of the 1937 figure of $102,392,000, which compared with $84,468,000 in 1936 and $73,314,000 in 1935. Last year was the first since 1936 in which the value of imports of such products was less than that of exports.

Corn Leads Grain List.

Corn headed the grain export list, shipments amounting to 147,505,104 bushels, valued at $94,496,089, or more than the combined value of all grains exported in any one of the three preceding years. The United Kingdom and Canada were the chief corn markets.

Wheat ranked second with shipments totaling 86,980,843 bushels, valued at $78,141,208, a total more than twice as large as that of 1937 and many times in excess of the 1936 and 1935 figures.

Exports of milled rice in 1938 amounted to 297,724,882 pounds, valued at $7,830,359, an increase of 101,723,000 pounds, and $1,697,000, as compared with 1937. Smaller gains were reported in shipments of other grains, the only exception being rye, which showed a slight decline.

Flour Trade Rises.

Exports of wheat flour milled wholly from United States grain increased from 2,270,098 barrels, valued at $11,927,112, in 1937, to 3,701,193 barrels, valued at $15,927,112 in 1938.

Exports of biscuits and crackers were higher in 1938 than in any of the three preceding years.

In a separate analysis of all types of goods the department of commerce found that exports from the United States to Germany dropped one-third in the first quarter of this year, compared with a year earlier.

The value of exports to Germany was $18,017,000 in the first three months of this year. In the corresponding period of 1938 the value was $25,578,000.

DRYNESS HURTS WHEAT

Dry weather has prevailed over the greater part of the winter and spring wheat areas during the last three weeks. The lack of rainfall is resulting in a downward revision in estimates on the prospective wheat crop.

Lack of subsoil reserve moisture is regarded as largely responsible for reports of deterioration of winter wheat in the American southwest. The trade and the public took the reports seriously and bought futures on a liberal scale. The May delivery sold last week at the highest price since July, 1938, and the July and September contracts went into new high ground for the season.

A government report giving an estimate on the winter wheat crop will be issued on May 10.

Francis Durrance of Washington, D. C., will conduct a federal power commission hearing in Chicago this morning on charges that unreasonable rates are charged for natural gas sold to Illinois utilities.

The purpose of the issue is to consolidate the short term debt and provide the treasury with new money. Banks Striving to Lend More, A.B.A. Reports

Most of the banks in the nation are striving to increase their loans, the research council of the American Bankers association declared yesterday.

After a study of a cross section of representative banks, the council said it made the following findings:

1. Of every 100 banks, 86 are making positive efforts to lend more.
2. Seventy-four of each 100 banks are advertising for loans.
3. About 63 per cent are soliciting loans in some other manner.
4. Fifty-eight out of every 100 are offering open lines of credit.

Credit Lines Little Used.

5. Only 31.5 per cent of these open lines of credit are being used by business houses.

Banks replying to the council's inquiry said they are attempting to stimulate lending by offering competitive rates, taking care of credit needs of worthy customers, giving special services in connection with loans, helping borrowers develop programs for liquidating debts, and granting specialized credits such as character loans to individuals, loans on life insurance policies and loans to finance instalment purchases.

The council said that banks have an average of 1,016 loans outstanding to local borrowers and 736 loans of less than $1,000 to individual borrowers. The average size of the small borrower's loan was said to be $241.

Many Make Term Loans.

Twenty out of every 100 banks were shown to be making term loans to business with a maturity of two years or more, and the average number of such loans per bank was estimated at 55. The typical such loan for banks, not including the largest city banks, was placed at $1,343.

"Small banks," the council said, "are making capital loans in amounts commensurate with the needs of the small business men of their communities, while the big city banks are extending accommodation of this type in substantial figures."

DELAY MEETING OF NEGOTIATORS IN COAL DISPUTE

New York, May 7.—(AP)—Bituminous coal operators and union representatives, who had been requested by President Roosevelt to reach a quick solution of their deadlocked contract negotiations, held only scattered individual conferences today. The negotiating committee session, set for this afternoon, was adjourned until tomorrow.

The conferees have been stalemated for two months over a closed shop issue, an impasse that brought idleness to approximately 460,000 miners in twenty-six states over the weekend after a stop work order issued by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America [C. I. O.].

There was no evidence of any change in the attitudes of the union or management.

AGFA ANSCO.

Investors' Guide: Is the Agfa Ansco corporation a German company or controled by a German company? I notice that Agfa cameras appear to be of German make. Where is its plant located?—B. M. R.

Answer: Agfa Ansco is not directly controled by German interests, but it does have an operating agreement with a big German chemical company, I. G. Farbenindustrie.

Under the arrangement Agfa Ansco has the exclusive right to make and sell in this country cameras and photographic supplies that are made by Farbenindustrie in Germany. The agreement also gives Farbenindustrie exclusive rights in all countries outside the United States.

Agfa Ansco is controled by the American I. G. Chemical corporation and has its main office and plant in Binghamton, N. Y.

CURTIS PUBLISHING.

Investors' Guide: I have some preferred stock of Curtis Publishing that I bought in 1929. It is now selling for about one-third the price I paid and dividends are something like $15 in arrears. Have the company's revenues fallen very much in comparison with 1928 and 1929 revenues? How much of its income is from advertisers and how much from subscribers?—T. M.

Answer: Advertisers account for about 80 per cent of the revenues of Curtis Publishing, and 20 per cent comes from the buyers of its magazines.

Revenues are now much smaller than they were in the late 1920s. Here is a comparison of total revenues and net income for 1928 and 1929 with those for the last two years:

	Revenues.	Net income.	Earned per pfd. shr.
1929	84,619,000	21,534,000	23.93
1937	46,295,000	4,121,000	4.90
1938	40,775,000	1,279,000	1.62

Profits this year have improved over those for 1938. In the first quarter net income rose to $382,000, or 49 cents per preferred share, against $246,000 or 29 cents a share in the first three months of last year.

EQUITY SECURITIES.

Investors' Guide: I see reference now and then to the term "equity securities." Just what does this mean?—Mrs. M. R.

Answer: Equity securities mean common stocks.

Chandler Act Cases Are Led by Industrials

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—The first of a series of reports on companies entering bankruptcy was made public today by the Securities and Exchange commission. New York and Illinois were found to be the states with the greatest concentration of assets of the bankrupt corporations.

The studies were made by the SEC in connection with the Chandler amendment which gave the commission advisory duties in certain types of corporate reorganizations. The information was designed to be of assistance to the commission and to others interested in analysis of bankrupt ventures.

Two hundred and fifty corporations entered into corporate reorganization under chapter X. of the bankruptcy act from last Sept. 22, when the Chandler amendment became effective, to March 31.

83 Manufacturing Companies.

[The Chandler act provided the first general revision of the bankruptcy act in forty years. Chapter X. replaced the former section 77-B.]

Of the 250 companies, the largest number, eighty-three, were engaged in manufacturing, the report showed. Real estate companies were next, totaling sixty-four.

Measured by aggregate assets, eight transportation and communications companies led with 37 per cent of the total assets of the 250 companies.

In 173 cases the stated indebtedness of each firm was less than $250,000. These represented 69 per cent of the total number, but involved only 6 per cent of the aggregate assets.

Located in 32 States.

The principal assets of the 250 companies were shown to be located in thirty-two states, the District of Columbia, and one territorial possession.

"Forty-three companies whose principal assets were situated in Illinois showed aggregate assets of $141,200,000, or 40 per cent of the total for all 250 companies, while twenty-eight companies with principal assets in New York had aggregate assets of about $102,800,000, or 29 per cent of the total for all companies," the report said.

"Of a total indebtedness of about $222,600,000 for all companies, $85,600,000, or 38 per cent, was accounted for by the forty-three companies which had their principal place of business in Illinois, and $52,800,000, or 24 per cent, by the twenty-eight companies which had their principal place of business in New York."

For three months of the company's fiscal year sales totaled $102,289,291, a rise of 14.13 per cent from $89,624,311 in the same period in 1938.

The Jewel Tea company reported sales in the four weeks ended April 22 were $1,860,892, an increase of 2 per cent from $1,824,511 in the same 1938 weeks.

CLOTHING, FURS, ETC.

PUBLIC NOTICE!

On the 28th day of April, 1939, the Board of Directors of the Morris Clothing Co. met at 212 s. Franklin-st., and upon examining the inventory, decided that there were 500 too many suits and topcoats in stock. Through the Chairman of the Board of Directors they ordered these 500 units sold before May 15 — this is probably the last chance you will ever have of securing nationally advertised clothing at actual wholesale prices.

After May 15 this merchandise will be offered to the jobbing trade.

Signed: Chairman of the Board of Directors.
